

CONGRESS TO HASTEN WORK

SIXTY-SECOND BODY ASSEMBLES AT NOON FOR FINAL ACTS.

PROGRAM'S CROWDED

FIFTEEN APPROPRIATION BILLS CARRY OVER $1,000,000,000.

DEMOCRATS LOOKING AHEAD

Plans Will Be Made for Extra Session to Be Called By Wilson in Spring.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The expiring sixty-second congress will assemble at noon tomorrow for its final work. In the brief period remaining before constitutional limitations bring it to an end and turn many of its members back into private life, fifteen appropriation bills, carrying over a billion dollars for the support of the government, must be passed; the impeachment of Judge Archibald of the commerce court must be tried in the senate; many investigating committees must conclude inquiries and make their reports; and scores of legislative matters must be disposed of.

Throughout the session will run the preparatory work for the extra session to be called soon after President-elect Wilson takes office on March 4. Committees, pursuant to this, will thresh out questions of tariff, currency and anti-trust legislation, aiming to have democratic policies shaped and democratic plans made before the new administration comes in.

It is assumed, however, that there will be no tariff legislation this winter. Neither is it expected that the currency or anti-trust problems will receive much attention, the principal work of the session being confined to preparation for the democratic administration and the enactment of some of the more important bills pending.

Important bills to receive attention include the bill for a department of a labor, which Senator Borah said today would be presented for immediate action; the Sheppard-Kenyon bill preventing shipments of liquor into "dry" states; the Page bill, to give federal aid to vocational and agricultural schools; and the resolution for a constitutional amendment limiting a president to a single term of six years.

Members have been seen in the corridors in Washington and not much interest is shown in the preparations for activity. The annual estimates for appropriations are ready and will be sent to the house tomorrow noon. President Taft's report will be brought in the following day.

A sub-committee has completed the first appropriation bill, and it will be passed on by the full committee on appropriation tomorrow.

This measure carries appropriations for legislative, executive and judicial salaries. The impeachment trial of Judge Archibald will engross the senate during the session.

Several new inquiries are in prospect. The house judiciary committee will begin an inquiry into anti-trust problems about Christmas week, with the hope that some amendments to the anti-trust law can be recommended before congress adjourns.

In the "money trust" investigation an effort will be made to obtain a partial report before the session ends. Many other investigations, including the so-called "shipping trust," and the awarding of contracts for army and navy shoes must be concluded before March 4.

Senators would not venture opinions as to the outcome in the selection of a presiding officer. Since the death of Senator Frye, president pro-tempore, the senate has been unable to select a successor. The progress, however, refused to vote either for the republican candidate, Senator Gallinger, or the democratic candidate, Senator Bacon, and the two men have acted alternately as president by unanimous consent.

When it convenes tomorrow the senate will face the prospect of an immediate adjournment to give a partial report for the memorial of Vice President Sherman and Senators Rayner and Heyburn. Senator Bacon will act as presiding officer until December 14 by an agreement made last August. It is believed the senate will then continue him as presiding officer of the impeachment court until the Archibald trial is concluded.

MINISTER FACES MURDER TRIAL

Rev. Charles Emelius Argued of Death of August Jacobson, New Sweden Farmer.

Houlton, Maine, Dec. 1.—The Rev. Charles M. Emelius, Lutheran minister, is the center of a trial which will be begun here this week in an attempt to fix responsibility for the mysterious death of August Jacobson, a New Sweden farmer, on June 11, last.

Mrs. Jacobson, the minister's mother-in-law, and her son, Edgar J. Jacobson, are co-defendants. Jacobson's body was found near his home with a note and the case was accepted at first as suicide. Later an autopsy revealed the fact that the man had been shot four times.

Patrick Seeks to Have Will Declared Forgery, Probated

No Public Action Has Been Taken in Matter, However, So Far as Is Known.

New York, Dec. 1.—A concentrated effort to probate the last will of William Marsh Rice by Albert T. Patrick and his friends can be expected as the next move of the man who Governor Dix pardoned last Wednesday, according to his own statement. At Patrick's trial for murdering the old millionaire the will was declared a forgery.

The determination of Patrick to contest the will probated and seek to probate the second will of Rice was announced Friday, when Patrick said that to vindicate himself he must prove the genuineness of the second will.

The Rice will probated left the bulk of the estate to the trustees of the Rice Institute at Houston, Texas. The second will, which the state alleges a forgery, virtually gives Patrick control of the millions to be held and used to a discretion for the benefit of worthy public institutions.

AMNESTY MAY BE OFFERED REBELS

NEW MINISTER OF MEXICO INTERIOR TO PLEAD FOR PEACE.

BELIEVE FEAR OF EXECUTION

With This Removed Permanent Quiet May Be Restored—Engagements Decrease Daily in Number.

Mexico City, Dec. 1.—Convinced that numerous bandit raids in the states of Durango, Coahuila and Southern Chihuahua are continuing their operations merely because they believe surrender would mean summary execution, the new minister of the interior, announced today he would attempt to gain for them a promise of amnesty.

Cheche Campos and Benj. Arcuado, officers in Orozco's organization, are the chief rebel leaders in those districts, and several engagements have been fought during the latter part of the week, the government as usual announcing victories.

These and allied leaders have been making slight raids on small outposts, confining themselves for the most part to evading encounters with the superior federal forces. The rich country is practically at their mercy and the federal soldiers are able to accomplish little more than garrison the larger towns.

Minister Hernandez is confident that the rurales who report to his department, will be able to be more effective than the regular troops and, aiming at this, he has conferred with General De la Vega, commander-in-chief of the rural guard.

Hernandez has issued a general order to the rurales to command horses when needed, giving receipts to the owners and notifying the government. The rurales have complained that frequently because of inferior mounts they are unable to follow the insurgents.

It also is believed this will prevent the rebels from obtaining horses and will assure the owners of payment. It was suggested by complaints of raids from the ranch owners.

Out of the mass of rumors as to the whereabouts of General Orozco, the most credited is the report that he has re-appeared at the head of some hundreds of men east of Ojinaka, Chihuahua, after recuperating from a serious sickness.

The government professes satisfaction at the improvement in the general situation. In the state of Oaxaca some diminution of activity is apparent after a federal campaign of destruction and summary executions.

Engagements Decrease in Number. Throughout the republic the number of engagements has decreased. Only five were reported today. In one brush yesterday the federalists retired after eight hours' fighting. On the arrival of a fresh supply of ammunition, the federalists resumed the campaign with the result of routing the rebels.

The governor of Vera Cruz reported that with the capture of Garcia Bravo near Tuxman the state has been exterminated. The failure of the Mexican government and the failure of the Mexican people to give the nature of the reply gives some basis for believing it is not entirely pleasing to the American government.

Francisco De La Barra, the former provisional president, is one of the candidates in the election today for the governorship of the state of Mexico, but it is impossible to learn even the probable result.

The Mexicans are not wholly reassured by the Washington declarations and are keenly interested in the proposed visit of four American battleships to Vera Cruz and the motive for their coming.

Much interest is displayed in the character of the Mexican note replying to that which the United States sent to Mexico in September. It is no secret that the American note is not pleasing to the Mexican government and the failure of the Mexican foreign office to discuss the nature of the reply gives some basis for believing it is not entirely pleasing to the American government.

ARMISTICE IS YET UNSIGNED

FOURTEEN HAVE PEACE MEAL

Cholera Results in 415 Deaths Since Nov. 6—Turkish Commander Nazim Pasha, Entertains.

Constantinople, Dec. 1. (Midnight)—

The signing of the protocol of the armistice has been postponed until Tuesday in order to give an opportunity to the representatives of all of the allies to sign.

The meetings of the delegates in the peace negotiations have taken place near the bridge spanning the river Karasul, between Tefalija and Hademk. The Bulgarians arrived on both Tuesday and Wednesday. On Thursday Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, entertained at luncheon. The Turks arrived early but there was no sign of the Bulgarians.

Presently the approach of a train from Tefalija was reported. Nazim Pasha was skeptical, not believing that the Bulgarians could repair the bridges blown up. A Bulgarian train soon appeared, however, and fourteen sat down to luncheon. It seemed a cordial gathering.

The sudden unexpected sent salutation to the troops with gifts of tobacco.

415 Deaths from Cholera. There were forty-eight cases of cholera in Constantinople Saturday with nine deaths. The total number of cases since November is officially reported as 842, with 415 deaths.

Travelers from Dedagatch describe the massacre of Muslims by Bulgarians when they entered that town, which is reported to be typical of what is happening throughout Macedonia. The first Bulgarians to enter were an irregular band of not more than 120.

A shot was fired from the mosque which is flying the white flag, whereupon the Bulgarians demolished the mosque by bombs, burned and looted the Turkish quarter and massacred 500 persons. More than 100 bodies were counted in the streets, some of which were those of Christians.

The Turkish army, however, plundered, then burned, the roughs of the town taking part in the pillaging.

The Greek bishop sent a boat to Besika Bay for help. The foreign warships sent several boats into the harbor at night, carrying big lights to make them look like warships.

Dedagatch was garrisoned only by irregulars. The last train departing before the Bulgarians arrived was carrying fugitives. One of the engineers was bitten on the hands and legs by frenzied women who tried to climb into the engine.

Sofia, No Meeting at Sofia.

Sofia, Dec. 1.—No meeting of the peace delegates was held today, according to information here. The Greek representatives failed to receive necessary instructions from their government. The council of ministers is hearing a protracted session at Sofia and government circles are optimistic and hope for a favorable report tomorrow.

The Bulgarians are reported to have proposed that the peace negotiations be held in Sofia, and it is not anticipated that the Turks will object.

The near Adrianople were fired by Bulgarian shells, the flames spreading to many other buildings.

Conflict Avoided.

Belgrade, Dec. 1.—The following official statement was issued today: "The government has not sent and is not sending a single soldier to the northern frontier. It is fortifying neither Belgrade nor any other town in the Danube States. On the contrary, the government is doing everything possible to avoid a superfluous conflict."

Citizens Disarmed.

Athens, Dec. 1.—Military governor of Saloniki, aiming effectually to preserve order, has disarmed the entire population. An official message from Chios, in the Aegean Sea, said the Greek army is proceeding slowly but surely. The Turkish troops were surrounded and the Greeks had occupied all the fortified positions. A Greek warship had bombarded and demolished the Hagia Sophia monastery, which the Turks used as a storehouse.

King Nicholas Speaks.

Rieka, Dec. 1.—King Nicholas, accompanied by the crown prince, arrived at Gruda yesterday. The king made a stirring address to the troops and gave orders for the disposition of the attacking forces.

The heavy guns bombarded Scutari for two hours in the afternoon. The attack was resumed today, the king directing personally.

Newspapers Are Hopeful.

Vienna, Dec. 1.—A majority of the Vienna newspapers view the Balkan situation more hopefully, chiefly on account of the report that Russia has given assurances to Austria that she does not intend to support all of Serbia's ambitions. Most of the journals think the climax of the crisis is past, but there is no sign that Serbia has abandoned its attitude on the question of an Adriatic port.

The Neue Presse asserts that during the present negotiations Serbia demanded from Turkey the cession of the whole Albanian coast from Montenegro to Durazzo, which the Turkish delegates refused.

El Paso, Dec. 1.—A machine gun borrowed from a Mexican gunboat is being used to protect a troop train which left Juarez today to patrol railroads between the state capital and the border.

The train, carrying 500 soldiers, departed over the Mexican Northwestern railway soon after arriving over the Mexican Central lines. It is planned to continue making this loop between Chihuahua City and Juarez. Troops will proceed overland to the assistance of the federalists besieged at Ascension by Salazar's rebels.

Terms of Peace.

London, Dec. 1.—The terms of the armistice, according to the standard, provides that the armies shall remain in their present position and cease firing, reinforcing or bringing up ammunition. Adrianople and Scutari shall not be evacuated, but their garrisons shall receive rations daily sufficient for one day.

Bulgaria, the correspondent adds, is willing that Adrianople should remain Turkish, providing that Turkey will pay an indemnity of $250,000,000.

Opposition in Paris.

Paris, Dec. 1.—According to official circles in Paris tonight, Sir Edward Grey's suggestion for a conference of the ambassadors to consider the Balkan settlement is meeting with opposition from members of the triple alliance, who desire that the conference shall take place in a neutral city such as Bern, The Hague or Brussels, and not in the capital of one of the powers interested.

If this objection is maintained, it is considered that it will be difficult to come to an agreement, for it is pointed out that a meeting of the ambassadors implies the choice of a capital where the ambassadors already accredited could represent their governments; whereas, the choice of a neutral city would involve the sending of special envoys. This would really be a congress and there would be no reason why delegates from the belligerent states as well as from Roumania should not be admitted thereto.

Paris Paper's Outline.

The Temps gives the main lines of a peace scheme as outlined by Turkish sources.

According to this scheme, Greece gets old Epirus; Serbia gets Old Serbia and Novi-Bazar, and Bulgaria gets Thrace, following the frontier from Midia to Dedaghaton or Kavala, but excluding Adrianople, which remains connected with Constantinople and the Danubian.

Autonomy is to be granted to Macedonia with Salonika as the capital. Albania, minus a part ceded to Montenegro and also the provinces are placed under the suzerainty of the Balkans. The final condition is the admission of Turkey to the Balkan league.

VICE CONTAMINATING SOCIETY.

So Bishop Declares in a Sensational Address.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 1.—"Rome in her worst days never harbored such conditions of vice as are prevalent in our highest social circles at the present time," declared Bishop A. W. Wilson, of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, in a sermon here today.

"Never at any period of the world's history," added Bishop Wilson, "has the moral strata been so thin or so low. The world is beset today with more insane theories and philosophies, more hypocritical creeds than ever before."

"The advance of science and philosophy in the study of the fine infinite subjects connected with the religion of the earth is imperiling the religious welfare of the world. Science discloses the secrets of the universe. The mystery which permeates the understanding will not be unfolded by the hand of man through the application of philosophy."

Bishop Wilson is attending the South Georgia Methodist Conference in session here.

OKLAHOMA SENATE TO CONVE

Aim to Clear Up Trouble Regarding Education Board.

Okla. City, Dec. 1.—For the purpose of clearing up the difficulties between Governor Lee Cruise and the members of the state board of education who refused to "stay fired," the Oklahoma state senate will convene here in special session Tuesday. The governor will ask the senate to confirm the appointment of the members appointed by him to replace the old members. The governor discharged three of the six old members because of alleged official deals in the selection of the facilities of the state schools and in letting $3,000,000 worth of school book contracts.

The message of the governor to the regular session of the legislature which convenes in January was sent out six weeks in advance so that the legislators and the general public might have time to consider the recommendations. It made up a book of 113 pages and a large number of sweeping changes in the statutes were asked.

TO DEDICATE HERZ MONUMENT

Services are to Take Place Next Sunday at Hebrew Rest, Rabbi I. Warsaw Officiating.

Next Sunday will occur the dedication of the monument of the late Alfred J. Herz, which is to be placed during the week at the grave in Hebrew Rest, at the South First Street cemetery.

Alfred J. Herz was a Waco boy, and organized the firm of Herz Bros., the two boys, Alfred and Sidney, taking up the business when their father passed away. Two energetic young men, starting in business, found every encouragement from those who knew them here, and as years passed they became well known in business circles. Enterprising in every way, they were active actors in commercial affairs. Alfred Herz died December 3, 1911. Under an old Jewish custom, the time for setting and dedicating the tomb is twelve months, and the date has been selected for next Sunday as coming within that time.

Rabbi I. Warsaw of the Temple will officiate at the service. The members of the family residing here will be present, and there also will be sisters of Sidney Herz, Mrs. Sigmund Bruck of Tyler and Mrs. Joe Hirsch of Corpus Christi. All friends of the family are invited to attend the services.

SUGAR FROM MAPLE TREES.

From Earlier Times The Indians Produced The Syrup.

From the time the earliest explorers discovered Indians making sugar from the maple tree until the present day, the production of maple sugar has been an important industry in the United States, is the interesting information contained in Farmers' Bulletin 216, soon to be issued by Secretary Wilson. The industry is purely American, Canada being the only country outside of the United States that produces the product. The bulletin says:

"Maple sugar and maple syrup are considered delicacies and are not produced in such quantities as formerly. The aggregate of all pure maple products and the many imitations may be the same, for it is said that with the maple tree cut down, and all the maple trees cut down, and thus the supply of maple sugar and syrup would be noted. Within the last six or seven years there has been a renewed tendency toward the production of a better grade of maple products."

"Maple syrup or maple sugar prepared by the best methods is a light-colored, pleasant-tasting product. Contrary characteristics are the result of uncleanly methods and possibly sour sap in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, and were manufacturers to take greater care in their methods their results would show improvement. This better grade may not appeal to many people who have been accustomed to the dark, stronger grades."

In relation to the present growth of the sugar maple the bulletin states: "Within its wide range the sugar maple appears as a preeminent tree only in the New England states, New York, Southern Canada, Northern and Western Pennsylvania, and in parts of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. In the Southern Appalachians it occurs in scattered bodies where climate conditions are similar to those of the North. In the extreme northern part of New York state and the adjacent district of Quebec the forest growth is often almost pure maple, and even considerably further south, where beech and birch become associate, the sugar maple holds its own as the dominant species. In Northern Pennsylvania, at an altitude of over 1,000 feet, the mixture is much the same as it is in New York. In Ohio Indiana and Illinois a similar condition is found; but as the hilly country disappears the maple retreats to the richer and damper soils, leaving great areas to the oaks and chestnuts."

Mediation Law Department.

New York, Dec. 1.—The National Civic federation has organized a mediation department on northern mediation laws, with Marcus Marks as chairman. The federation's new department finds need of legislation, both federal and state. It is planned to strengthen and broaden the Erdman act, the operations of which have thus far been very limited, and a model state bill on industrial mediation laws.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 1.—When New York Central train No. 45, westbound from New York, traveling at an estimated speed of between 40 and 50 miles an hour, was derailed at Hoffman's seven miles west of Schenectady today, not one of the 200 passengers was injured. The chief of the dining car sustained several broken ribs.

SERVANS ENTER DURAZZO

Their Presence Is Almost Welcomed. No Shots Were Fired on Either Side.

London, Dec. 2.—A dispatch from Durazzo to the Daily Telegraph says: "The Servians entered Durazzo without firing a shot. They were actually welcomed by the citizens. With almost religious solemnity the worn, ragged Servian troops marched out of the mountains into the town."

"An Austrian steamer with wireless left the harbor as the Servians arrived, cutting off telegraphic communication which had existed only through her wireless service."

"The vanguard of Servian horsemen accompanied by citizens who had gone forth to meet them were welcomed to the city in behalf of the Muslims by Mohammedan priests, while the Christians were represented by the Metropolitan."

The soldiers who entered the war as fine strapping fellows, are now ragged, unkempt and exhausted.

"The Servian officer announced that the Servians would bring peace and good order and having reached Durazzo their grand enterprise was ended. The crowd exclaimed: 'Long live Serbia and its king!'"

"Almost the first act of the Servian commander was the lowering of the Albanian flag. Night fell before the small occupying squadron of cavalry was reinforced by three battalions."

"The orthodox bishop went out with lanterns to meet the commander. The citizens were apparently highly pleased and greeted each fresh regiment as it arrived through the night with enthusiasm."

"It is evident from the appearance of the troops that the campaign in the mountains has worn out the Servian army. Its officers declare that Albanian autonomy is simply an Austrian device."

THREE SKATERS ARE DROWNED

Woman Makes Unsuccessful Attempt to Save Nephew and Entire Party Fall Through Ice.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 1.—Three persons were drowned and several other members of a family skating party had narrow escapes today when they broke through the ice on Heart Lake in North Lackawanna county.

The dead are: Mrs. Adelbert Reynolds, aged 39, her son whose name could not be learned and Ross Reynolds, aged 10, a nephew.

Ross Reynolds, skating on thin ice, plunged into the water. Mrs. Reynolds endeavored to pull him out and she too fell in. The other members of the party attempted to rescue the woman and her nephew and all fell into the icy water. Mr. Reynolds managed to free himself and save all but three of the party, but his strength was exhausted before he could complete the task. The bodies of those drowned were recovered. The survivors were in a critical condition from exposure and shock.

Col. Goethals to Be Made General.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Col. Geo. W. The promotion would be for life. Representative Mann who with a party of other congressmen recently inspected the canal was enthusiastic tonight in his praise of Col. Goethals' achievements and declared he and the other officers associated with him should be rewarded by the nation.

ARCHBOLD HEARING TUESDAY.

Senate Prepares to Hurry Inquiry Along.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Judge Robert W. Archbold of the commerce court will appear before the senate Tuesday, Senator Baker presiding, to stand trial under articles of impeachment found against him by the house of representatives.

The charges against Judge Archbold are that he engaged in business deals with litigants before his court and sought favors from them to an extent that constituted "high crime and misdemeanor." Judge Archbold has denied that any of his acts were of an impeachable character.

This is the ninth impeachment trial in the history of the government.

A Fruit Cake

To be of the finest quality must necessarily be produced from the best of materials.

The fruit cake ingredients which we handle are entirely in a class by themselves, and the business we are doing in this line is enormous. Fine "French Glace" Cherries, Pineapples and Transparent Citron is not found everywhere, whereas the ordinary "tough" article is to be had everywhere. Both first and second prizes on Fruit Cakes as exhibited at the Cotton Palace were awarded to Waco ladies, who baked their cakes from ingredients purchased from us.

Fruit Cakes, like the balance of our offerings, are A-1 in quality and our customers rely on us when seeking the best.

During the month of December you are going to need a great variety of fine groceries, and we want to have the pleasure of serving you. Perhaps it would not be amiss to suggest that you confine your business with us during December because you are assured of receiving both service and quality, coupled with a complete stock, which eliminates the necessity of "trading around" and scattering your bills.

The large store force which we now employ (18 in all), augmented by our complete phone system (8 phones, all No. 6) and our delivery, consisting of 7 wagons, makes for rapid service.

In a word, your business, whether tiny or large, is appreciated by us. Then why not for December—

MERIDIAN ROAD PARTY.

Will Be in Waco Next Monday for a Conference.

John C. Nicholson and a party of engineers interested in the survey of the Meridian Road, which is to be an international highway from Canada to the Gulf, will reach Waco December 9.

The Waco Automobile Club is arranging to entertain this party and discuss the route of the road through Texas. A committee composed of M. Falkner, W. W. Seley and Roy E. Lane has been appointed to arrange all the details. It is proposed to give the visitors an entertainment of some kind, and to talk over the matter. Just which route the road will take from Waco has not been determined. San Antonio wishes to get it, and there is a sentiment in favor of going direct to Houston.

TARIFF DEALS UP TO WILSON

METHOD OF PROCEDURE LEFT WITH PRESIDENT-ELECT TO DECIDE.

UNDERWOOD IN STATEMENT IS AGAINST THE RINGERS

Speaking for Himself He Proposes Going Through Laws and Reforming Every Schedule.

Washington, Dec. 1.—To President-elect Wilson will be left the task of determining whether the tariff alone is to be considered at the special session of congress next spring or whether general legislation shall be taken up and whether the tariff is to be revised as a whole or by schedule.

Representative Oscar W. Underwood, chairman of the ways and means committee of the house and democratic tariff leader, has said he would make no decision on either of these points until he had talked with President-elect Wilson. He will meet Mr. Wilson probably in New York late in December or early in January and the question of the tariff will be elaborated and given to the public.

"I can express now only my own opinion as a member of the committee," said Mr. Underwood. "I favor going through the entire tariff law and revising and reforming every schedule. Whether that revision will be in a single bill or a series of bills, each to cover a single schedule, will not be determined by the committee until we know Mr. Wilson's desires."

"The house desires to work in entire harmony with the president and to that end it will be guided by his wishes as fully as possible. Mr. Underwood talked with many members of the house today and received various expressions of opinion as to what the present and the extra session committee will have a general meeting late next week and the democratic members then will begin plans for the opening of hearings in January, at which all persons will be allowed to present their tariff views."

House to Reserve Power.
The desire of senate democrats to participate in the original making of the tariff bills drew a definite statement from Mr. Underwood that the senate will be fully consulted in all matters of preparation but that the house would reserve to itself its full authority to make the original tariff bills.

"I think the members of the ways and means committee would be willing to confer freely with the members of the finance committee of the senate, as well as with the members of the senate with reference to a tariff bill," he said. "We should endeavor if it is possible to do so to send a bill to the senate which is going to meet with the approval of the democrats of the senate when it gets over there."

"But I think that as far as you can go, you cannot have a general committee of the two houses to write a tariff bill because the ways and means committee is responsible to a different constituency than the finance committee of the senate. We have to bring in a bill which will be satisfactory to the membership of the house and the senate finance committee has to bring in one that is satisfactory to the members of the senate."

"If we had a general committee and the senators sent something to the house that did not meet with the approval of the house, it would be making us stand for something that our constituents would not stand for. The result is we will have to prepare our bill with the sentiment of the house in view and we cannot afford to surrender that to anybody outside of the house."

"There are probably will be differences between the two houses in the end on questions arising in the tariff bill, but when these differences go to conference they can be settled by compromise. The senate may put amendments on to the house bill which the house would take as a matter of compromise in the end, but which it would not take at all as an original suggestion from the ways and means committee."

PITTSBURG LEADS IN FIELDING

Pennant Winning Giants, Rank Seventh—Daubert Leads First Base-men List—Sailer Close Second.

New York, Dec. 1.—Pittsburg, which finished second in the National League race last season, led the National League in fielding by nine points, while the pennant winning Giants were seventh.

This is shown by the official fielding averages, made public today, the Pirates leading with a percentage of .972, as against .943 for Philadelphia, second, while the New Yorks are next to last, with .926, two points ahead of the Boston, who fielded as they finished in the league race—last.

Daubert led the first basemen with Sailer a close second, while Egan of Cincinnati was far ahead of the other regular second sackers. Lobert of Philadelphia, fielded .974 in sixty-four games, second man among regular third basemen being Byrne of Pittsburgh, with .948 in 139 games. Wagner, the Pirate veteran, was easily the premier shortstop.

Pittsburg players were also to the fore among the outfielders. Bonlin, Leach (later with Chicago) and Cary being among the first seven. Marsans of Cincinnati, is between Leach and Carey, with Wheat, Murray of New York, and Paskert of Philadelphia, immediately following. Pittsburgh's three backstops—Simon, Gibson and Kelly—are three men in a row among the catchers, only topped by Needham of Chicago. Several pitchers fielded perfectly. Robinson of Pittsburgh, going thirty-three games without an error, and Brown of Boston, and Willis of St. Louis, each thirty-one games.

CLEAN SPORTS PLEADS MATHER

FACULTY MEMBER FROM THE UNIVERSITY TALKS TO THE BOYS' CONFERENCE.

OTHERS MAKE TALKS AT THE CLOSING SERVICE AND ALL SING "BLEST BE THE TIE" IN PARTING.

Joining hands and forming an unbroken circle which stretched around the interior of the Austin Avenue Methodist church, the ninety-three delegates and secretaries in attendance on the first annual session of the Texas Older Boys' conference sang together "Blest Be the Tie" just prior to final adjournment last night.

This ceremony followed four seven-minute addresses by four speakers, one of whom was Dr. W. T. Mather, representative of the faculty of the University of Texas, in the Texas Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association, who has just come from the meeting at Fort Worth. He took occasion to say last night that the fellow who "plays ringers" and dirty sports has "the yellow streak," he stated emphatically ringers is an ordinary, contemptible liar.

The meeting followed the usual services conducted by the Rev. Hubert D. Knickerhooker, and the meeting was presided over by L. A. Coulter, state Y. M. C. A. secretary. Committee reports were first called for, after telegrams from the Colorado, New York, Ohio and New Hampshire state conferences sending greetings to the Texas boys were read.

The committee on credentials reported that the total number of delegates in attendance upon the conference was ninety, with three members of the state committee in attendance.

The report of the committee on resolutions offering thanks to A. R. Roberts for the trip to Austin and the twenty-two story Amicable Life building, to the citizens of Waco, the churches and the ladies who assisted at the banquet for their hospitality, to the speakers and the officers of the conference for their help. Resolutions were also adopted urging that each member of the delegation go home and endeavor to do more efficient work in the organization which he represents.

L. W. Dunn First Speaker.
L. W. Dunn, of the International committee, boys' department, was the first speaker of the evening. He said that he believed the conference here would have a wholesome effect upon the city of Waco, that it was good for the boys to begin serious thinking and good for the parents of the boys to begin serious thinking about them.

He declared that the work among boys in the United States and Canada was of vital importance because of the great number of boys who are now developing, there being 9,000,000 over 14 years of age in the two countries.

It is important, he says, because statistics show that the clinging vices first fasten upon the boy when he is in his teens, and that it is important because only 5 per cent of these boys become members of the church, while 76 per cent of them drop out of the Sunday schools before they get to the Bible classes.

The work is doubly important, he said, because formation is far easier and far simpler than reformation, and the time for formation of the character of the boy is now.

Charles W. Kingsbury.
Charles W. Kingsbury, boys' secretary of the San Antonio Y. M. C. A., was the next speaker introduced. He pointed out the fact that the boy has a great chance at home to begin "doing things" by doing the little things in every-day life that are helpful to those to whom he owes most. He urged that they purify the sports of the state.

In the high school there were many avenues open for telling work by boys, he said, one of which is through the morning chapel exercises. He advised the boys to be the principals of their schools and ask that the chapel exercises be made worth something, have some good lawyer or doctor deliver a short lecture, that would be helpful to the students in after life, once or twice a week.

In the churches, he declared, as well as in the Y. M. C. A., the boys could do wonders, both inside and outside. As an outside activity he told of a crowd of Y. M. C. A. boys that once took the children from an asylum for an outing once a week, the boys raising the money and conducting the excursion. "Great joy was dispensed in this way."

He said that in San Antonio the boys had absolute charge of the Sunday meetings, they arrange for the speakers, for the special music and for anything else that may come along, and the secretary frequently would know nothing of the meetings if he did not see the advertising, which was done by the boys.

Dr. W. T. Mather on Athletics.
Dr. W. T. Mather, of the University of Texas, on his way home from the meeting of the Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association at Fort Worth, which stopped over here for the closing session of the conference, was next introduced.

He declared that he had the combined fortunes of the senate to represent the university on the state board. He watches the sports on the field at the university and he also sees in his office, now and then the fellow who "plays the yellow streak" and all the sportsmen's diseases, except golf, and he is afraid to go near a golf course for fear he will catch that, including the incurable disease known as a desire to have clean sports. "Our men at the university want clean sports," he said. "If you knew them as I do you would realize this fact. The fellow who is willing to play any kind of game to win, isn't wanted on any of our teams. Personally, I wouldn't use him for anything."

"The man who will play any kind of a game to win, and I speak with conservatism, has a yellow streak, and the man who will play such men or ringers, when he has played them is just a plain, ordinary contemptible liar."

He declared that the man who would endeavor to drown the signals of another team, is playing dirty ball. The T. L. A. A. at its recent meeting has formed, he said, an organization which will reach back through the high school. But if any of the high school fellows dare him, he is afflicted with "the yellow streak," it wouldn't be worth while for him to come to Austin, for he wasn't wanted at the University of Texas.

B. W. Godfrey.
B. W. Godfrey, of Houston, told the boys that they, who have heard the talks at this conference, will have an unusual opportunity to come out on the right side, when they return to their homes. In the old days of chivalry, nobility carried with it certain obligations. So, he said, did the distinction of being a delegate to the first convention of the kind for boys, carry with it obligations which should not be forgotten when the excitement of the convention addresses had worn off and the boys had returned to their homes. They need not depend upon their own strength, but should depend upon Christ, and after heartily clasping his hand, should enter the battle with a stout heart.

L. W. Hunter.
L. W. Hunter spoke to the boys for a little more than one minute. He warned them that after having had the great opportunities offered them by this convention, they would probably meet face to face with some of the greatest temptations they had ever known within three days after they returned to their homes. The manner in which these are met and overcome or allowed to conquer, he predicted, would probably have a decided bearing upon the future lives of the boys.

Then, on the suggestion of Mr. Coulter, the boys joined hands in a circle which stretched entirely around the interior of the church. "Blest Be the Tie," Following the benediction, the meeting was adjourned sine die.

That the conference surpassed in its every phase the work and spirit expected from it by Mr. Coulter and the other leaders, were statements made last night after the meeting.

MISSIONARY FROM MEXICO.
Rev. Jackson B. Cox fills the Morrow Street Pulpit.

Filling the pulpit at both the morning and evening services, the Rev. Jackson B. Cox, for eighteen years a missionary to Mexico, delivered an inspiring sermon to the congregation of the Morrow Street Methodist church yesterday, dealing, for the most part, with his work in the foreign field.

At 11 o'clock his subject was "Mexico," he gave his hearers knowledge of the people, their customs, the taking of the country by the Spaniards under that daring leader, Cortez, the many struggles for independence, the revolution upon revolution. He spoke of their magnificent cathedrals, erected at such sacrifice of time and blood and money. His description of ex-President Diaz and of President Madero was interesting.

For eighteen years Rev. Mr. Cox has been a missionary among the Mexican people and he is thus well acquainted with their language, habits and manners. He knows their weak and strong points of character. He is soon to return, now that his year's furlough is almost ended, to spend the remainder of his active life preaching to the inhabitants of the republic, just to the south of our great state.

At the night service the speaker told several interesting experiences. One especially thrilling was when he narrowly escaped from a drunken Mexican filled with a murderous intent.

He closed his sermon by relating the life story of a Mexican boy who came to him for help which he gladly gave, assisting him through school and later on, when the boy had reached manhood, the missionary was privileged to be in his home, a happy, well-furnished home of the well-educated and prosperous man.

Notwithstanding the rain and mud, the services were well attended, and the visit of the Rev. Mr. Cox proved a blessing to the Morrow Street church.

An interesting feature of the night service was a song in Spanish by little Francis Cox, the 8-year-old daughter of the missionary. She is a bright, sweet and delightful child.

Revival at Second Presbyterian.
Beginning with the subject, "How to Start a Revival," Rev. E. E. Ingram, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, launched a series of soul-awakening sermons in his church yesterday morning, to the accompaniment of an excellent music program, the latter being in charge of W. H. Hightower.

Large crowds were in attendance, and it is believed that the two weeks during which the services will be continuing will be of the greatest benefit to hundreds who will hear his sermons. Mr. Ingram has thrown open the doors of his church to the members of all of the congregations who care to attend and listen.

HOW IT MIGHT HAPPEN. IV

The motorman knows that this is the saddest accident in the whole list. A little child comes out suddenly from behind a tree or wagon and runs quickly across the track—after a ball perhaps. The child is busy—intent upon its play. The motorman is straining every muscle in his body to stop the car! But it simply CANNOT be done in time. Not with the best car ever built or the best motorman who ever handled a brake. The wheels go over and— Suppose it was YOUR little boy or girl.

Keep the children from playing in the streets. Tell them EVERY day to look out for wagons and street cars.

NEW GOODS ARE ON DISPLAY

Merchants Say the Women Are Mistaken About Old Stock Being Shown.

The merchants of Waco think the action of the members of the Federation of Women's Clubs Saturday in declining to pass a resolution in favor of early shopping, have hit upon a mistaken idea as a reason.

The action of the club as reported yesterday was commented on quite freely. It is shown that the early shopping crusade was never intended to apply to toys because it is generally understood that toys are purchased all along from three to four weeks before Christmas, up until Christmas day. But those things which are to be given as useful presents are ready for the buyers. For instance, cut glass is a staple article of merchandise, and the cut glass bowl of last year is the same as the cut glass bowl of today. Designs in the cutting come out all during the year; there is no special design for this Christmas, any more than for some time during the summer.

The real diamond of last year in a Tiffany setting, is none the less valuable than the real diamond of this year, and the ladies know that those now being shown are the autumn showing, and not that of 1911, so in this regard they are mistaken in saying old stock is being shown.

And in brass goods—these things do not hang over from one Christmas to the other. That which failed to sell last Christmas, was cleaned up at the January Clearance sales, and are all gone—it doesn't pay to carry such things twelve months in storage.

The gloves which will be bought for Christmas presents, are the gloves of this season which are on display—these are true of hose, and ribbons, and embroidery. In fact, the stores state that the few weeks have been so many that stocks are being replenished every day.

The truth of the matter is, say the merchants, that the women who come now to shop will get the pick of all this year's purchases. They are on the edge of all the stores.

Early shopping is a sentiment. It is not urged only in Waco, but in every part of the country, because as the Christmas day approaches, and business becomes heavier every hour because of belated purchases, there will be extra burdens upon the employees of the trades people. Human nature cannot stand just so much of a strain, and if it becomes too much at Christmas time, the pleasure of the holiday is taken from those who are engaged in commercial work.

13,975,000 BALES IN SIGHT.

Cotton Crop Estimate Will Reach Those Figures.

New Orleans, Dec. 1.—This season's cotton crop will total 13,975,000 bales, according to estimates compiled by the New Orleans Times-Democrat from a canvass of reports from correspondents in every cotton-growing state.

This estimate does not include linters and repicks. The correspondents generally report that the farmers have been free to sell at current prices. The crop, it is stated, has been picked and ginned with unusual rapidity.

The Times-Democrat figures on production by states follows: Alabama 1,250,000, Arkansas 550,000, Georgia and Florida 1,800,000, Louisiana 450,000, Mississippi 1,100,000, Oklahoma 1,100,000, North Carolina 950,000, South Carolina 1,250,000, Tennessee 275,000, Texas 4,780,000, all others 100,000; total 13,975,000.

Texas Cotton Mills

O. E. Dunlap.

Waxahachie, Dec. 1.—In his recent report to the Texas Welfare commission, E. Dunlap of this city, chairman of the committee on the establishment of cotton mills, strongly recommends the establishment of these mills throughout the state and cites the local mill as evidence of what can be accomplished in this line of industry. The Waxahachie mills began operation in April, 1901, with a capital stock of $100,000, since which time they have steadily increased their output until today they compare favorably with mills in North Carolina and other eastern and northern states. Since the mill began operation, the fires have never cooled down, and the number of spindles has increased from 5000 to 10,000. The mill consumes annually 5000 bales of cotton, which, at the present price of cotton, will cost $275,000. Little or no difficulty has been experienced in procuring and keeping mill operatives, and the mill erects and owns its employees' dwellings. They are neat and comfortably located on the large grounds surrounding the mill. Fine artesian wells supply the employees with water, and a good system of sewerage connects with the city sewer. A neat and comfortable church also has been erected by the company for the use of its employees. Taken altogether, the mill is considered a success in every respect, and its operatives are prosperous and happy. Mr. Dunlap thinks the success of the Waxahachie mills can be duplicated elsewhere.

The report shows that there are fifteen cotton mills operating in Texas, with an aggregate capital stock of $2,229,000, running 112,404 spindles and consuming 40,990 bales of cotton per annum. The conditions described by Mr. Dunlap as necessary factory conditions are: Cheap money, cheap labor, cheap fuel and adequate transportation facilities. The New England states have the advantage over Texas in all these important factors, but in raw material Texas surpasses all states in the union. We produced 4,297,000 bales last year and consumed less than 1 per cent. In urging the location of more cotton mills in Texas, Mr. Dunlap said:

"I recommend the establishment at suitable locations of cotton mills with a minimum spindle capacity of not less than 10,000 spindles, and with ample capital to fully construct and complete the plant, leaving it, when finished, free from debt, and a surplus for operation."

PLEASE SHOP EARLY.

Let the shopper for Christmas-gifts shop early. Whether she or he shops often is the shopper's concern only. We made this accustomed plea as early as October and have twice or thrice repeated it. We make it again for the sake of shoppers, store employees and merchants.

The position taken by local club-women in refusing to adopt resolutions endorsing of the early shopping crusade is rather a surprise and would indicate scarcely enough consideration of the difficulties attending late shopping—the difficulties of shoppers and clerks. Proper consideration of these difficulties inevitably convinces one of the wisdom of shopping when shopping is more easily done. During the week preceding Christmas all stores are taxed beyond their capacity; "green" and inexperienced clerks have been hired to assist during the rush; there are too many who know just what they want to permit the uncertain shopper proper time and attention she should have to make the best selections. At this eleventh hour, also, stocks are necessarily scattered from constant handling, making the selection of most appropriate gifts at the price desired to be paid out of the question.

Go into any store today—the shopper will find enough clerks to wait on her who will be able to give much more time and attention to her and assist in selecting those articles most desirable for gifts. Nearer Christmas, those who want to purchase some inexpensive but pleasing gift will have difficulty in finding this class of wares. (The early shopper has profited by experience.) It is not necessary to have merchandise delivered at time of purchase; the merchant will be glad to let the shopper make a deposit and deliver the purchases on order, later. Where shopping is deferred to the last minute one invariably finds she has overlooked someone she wished to remember with a gift.

It is a mistake to suppose that "fresh goods" are not to be had at this time—December 2—with only twenty shopping days intervening 'til Christmas day. To argue such a contention is to argue that the stores during the past eleven months have not handled "fresh" goods. It is true goods are received daily just preceding Christmas, but these are "fill-in" orders on classes of merchandise steadily in demand for holiday trade and do not prove the absence of fresh goods in other lines earlier in the Christmas shopping season. Christmas things, so-called, need not be merely things bought by the merchant especially for Christmas, but may be merchandise desirable at all times and especially appropriate for Christmas giving; cut glass, Morris chairs, lace work, for example, may be bought at mid-August as well as in December.

To take the position that early shopping should not be endorsed and encouraged simply because certain merchants in Waco have old goods on some of their counters is something of a peculiar reflection on the much-vaunted business acumen of the intelligent woman shopper. If a woman knows there are old goods displayed and does not want them, let her either demand to be shown new merchandise or go to the shop where she knows it is displayed. There are leading merchants in Waco now displaying new goods on counters and in show cases, and they have been making this display for a fortnight or more. The woman who is dissatisfied with the dealings of any merchant need not patronize his shop. Just at this time certain local merchants are conducting sales at mark-down prices and are advertising this fact. What better opportunity could be had of buying gifts, if the shopper is satisfied with the goods now offered at such sales? During the week before Christmas buying is forced to a great extent and there is no necessity of offering price inducements. Certainly prices will be higher on December 26 than on December 2.

It occurs to us that a refusal to join in the early shopping movement for no other reason than that merchants are endeavoring to dispose of old goods at the beginning of the holiday season rather ignores the beneficent spirit of the average woman's club—with which the motive of generous treatment of young girls and women who stand behind the counters all day is usually the principal motive. "Let the merchants hire extra clerks," is no answer to this. Be very sure that a spirit that disregards any factor in the important Christmas shopping situation is one that should not be surprised, or complain, at whatever the merchant may offer, and whatever he may charge. It is give and take with a vengeance—and the woman cannot make all her holiday gifts.

We suggest that an appropriate gift to the clerk behind the counter at this season would be to remove much of this just-before-Christmas drudgery from her shoulders by distributing the bulk of the buying over twenty days rather than over six. To make such a gift, of course, one must subvert every consideration but that of kindness of heart and a desire for the true exemplification of the high ideals for which this holiday stands.

HOW LONG?

The time probably never will come in Texas when a plumber or a baker will offer for election to the bench or an iron worker seek to be appointed State food commissioner. It seems there is also a little prospect of the coming of time when only experts in whatever avocation and activity, training, teaching and guiding the nature of the place demands will be appointed to direct and control the public institutions of the State of Texas for the mentally, physically, morally defective, the orphans and the poor and the aged.

Reading the account of conditions at the State Institution for the Training of Juveniles, in Gatesville, the average parent proud of her motherhood must wonder, first of all, at the cause of the incarceration of boys nine to fifteen years old in such an institution. Realizing, of course, the impotency of some poor or ignorant or immoral or unkind parents to care for their boys, to teach them and curb them, there is no question of the need of the juvenile school properly operated by the State, but there is every question why boys as young as many of those now at Gatesville should be sent away for some petty theft. Why should a little youngster aged eight years be shipped to Gatesville for two years for pilfering from a store or a fruit stand and a deaf boy of thirteen be put in peril of losing any moral fibre he possessed by a three year's sentence for stealing a ride on a Texas railroad that is worth scarcely more than the happiness of the child?

We think this system of sending mere children to a State reformatory because their parents cannot properly care for them and keep them from vice and harm is radically wrong; it would be quite as wrong if the place were conducted even as a modern, humane, effective reformatory instead of (as it is) a place laboring under the deceptive title of "training institution" that merely protects children from hunger and the elements, but gives them no training, unless it be the work in the field. Some of those tow-headed youngsters belong nowhere but in a mother's arms and in primary school controlled by a community that pays teachers the worth of their hire as the formers of future citizens. Whatever chance of happiness, usefulness, honesty they may have is rapidly coming to jeopardy in the influence of their surroundings of uncleanness and idleness amidst the associates they must meet at Gatesville.

Until this State's legislature is willing to investigate to the last jot conditions obtaining in such places as this juvenile detention institution; until it is big enough, broad enough, manly enough to realize the seriousness of mistreating and mistraiding delinquent youth that demands more care, more skill, more kindness than any other class of humans; until it is wise enough to understand that it must provide these boys with work benches, school teachers with first grade certificates and experience, farm managers and superintendents with practical, efficient knowledge of their work; money sufficient to feed, clothe, bathe, amuse, protect and encourage in innocent pastimes such as gymnasium exercises and ball field sports; sufficient to insure clean bedding, clean towels, clean underclothing as often as the simplest rules of sanitation demand; until it is willing to pay superintendents, teachers, guards, artisans at such institutions what their expertness is worth, thereby making it possible for capable and kindly men and women to remain in the State's service; until it unequivocally demands, and enforces the demand that only proven experts shall be employed for such service—until such time, we say, these institutions will go from bad to worse, from disgrace to immorality, from a reproach to the state to a menace to the state.

None will cry "poverty" in answer to a demand that the State's school for boys be put on its feet, be made clean; that its 325 boys be put on their feet and made clean. None will dare to play politics against such a demand voiced by the citizens of this State and none will dare tamper with the effectuation of proper conditions by competent officials and governing board of such an institution.

The Waco News has reported the facts of present conditions at the institution as the News' representatives found them, without exaggeration and without bias or animus toward any man or set of men. This newspaper believes the Gatesville institution at present is a wrong done to the State no less than it is a wrong to those little boys and young men; for the institution is not fulfilling its avowed purpose, and can that be considered other than wrong to the State?

Here is one occasion when public officials cannot hold up their hands and confess helplessness. The legislature of Texas will meet in another month. It can provide the money; the governor can provide the means. It is not a hopeless or a helpless problem. Juvenile reform has succeeded in other States; why must Texas continue to be the exception to such success? Was Judge B. E. Lindsey of Denver ever heard to talk about the "bat," the dark cell, the "toe-hold" and the "tie-up" for boys thirteen years old and the reformatory for children who steal from a fruit-stand?

This is no brick wall. If the State will pay, men and women can be had to meet any emergency in administration of the penal obligations of Texas. How long is this State school for boys to be kept under heel?

ENFORCE THE LAW.

(Eddy Journal.) Waco picture shows were in operation again Sunday in violation of the Sunday closing law. At the opening of the Cotton Palace the picture show men declared their intention of opening for business on Sundays during the Cotton Palace only, claiming that inasmuch as the Warpath attractions did business on the Sabbath, they should be accorded the same right. But finding that the extra nickel collected from each spectator more than paid the little twenty-dollar fine, they evidently determined to continue opening on Sunday.

Doubtless, ardent advocates of local self-government will challenge the right of an Eddy paper and of Eddy people to show any concern in this matter. In reply to any such challenge, we contend that Waco is our county seat, in which we have a local pride and interest; that Waco is a part of McLennan county, and any condition of affairs that brings Waco into disrepute reflects in some measure on the entire county. Further, many of our citizens have sons and daughters attending educational institutions in Waco, therefore have a direct concern as to the influences surrounding their children. Eddy people, as law-abiding citizens, furthermore, have a general interest in the enforcement of any and all laws on the statute books of Texas, hence deplore and condemn the lawless condition that obtains in Waco in regard to the Sunday closing law.

And if the Waco authorities do not now assess the maximum fine of $50 instead of the minimum of $20, the public may place no confidence in their protestations of fealty to law enforcement.

In this connection it is not amiss to remind our state legislators that the Sunday closing law is really inadequate and should be strengthened in its weak spots. This, however, should be no excuse for Waco, for every other city in Texas has stamped out Sunday shows with the means at hand. The Central Texas metropolis, and our county capital, enjoys a unique and enviable(?) distinction.

NEWS REPLIES AND REMARKS.

Moving picture shows are running in Waco on Sunday in violation of the law. The disregard of one law invariably brings about disregard of others. There is a law that provides for increasing the penalty for repeated violations that might be tried at Waco, as the minimum penalty of $20.00 is accepted merely as a license. —Brownwood Bulletin.

The Waco News thinks that since Madero now blames the "venal Mexican press" for many of the republic's troubles, it has better be much more careful of the course of some preachers. I believe we have a right cause in prohibition, and that we will win in this state soon, but the kingdom is not going to come just because we have pug saloons out.

Our business is to get people converted, and then we will have no trouble in banishing the saloons. Some of our preachers have used wrong methods; some of them have alienated good friends by rash and harsh statements. Some of them have gone so far as to line up with the saloon boom, all anti-prohibitionists. Such a course as that is not only a lack of Christianity, but a lack of sense.

It's dead easy for a Waco man to tell us what he would do in Waxahachie postoffice matters, but it's us for the Bead idea of "postofficiency."—Waxahachie Herald.

The Waco moving picture situation has been driven by public sentiment into the channels of "respect for the law." Whether a person believes or does not believe in keeping open places of amusement on Sunday, every good citizen does believe in the law being enforced whenever any man or set of men laughs it to scorn or defiantly ignores it. The officers who week after week imposed the minimum penalty while the perpetrators made profit by paying the fines and charging an extra admission fee on Sunday in order to meet the little farcial fines, were getting very close to that place where the recall would be indicated. They have finally waked up, and now they are following the other section of the law providing for doubling up the amounts of the fines. The picture shows will go out of the Sunday business. Open and boasted defiance of any law is not to be tolerated. That is anarchy, and the people of this country are not ready to give over to anarchists the privilege of doing as they please. It was the defiance of the law, apparently condoned by the public officials, that roused the people of the city. Very probably, if left to a vote of the same people, a proposition to make a law to remain open on Sundays would carry by a good majority. That was not the question, however.—Temple Telegram.

To the Ministry.

I trust no one will misunderstand me, for my record along this line is well known, but we have recently gone through a prohibition campaign in this state, and I have been much surprised at the course of some preachers. Texas Viewpoints

Is It Possible?

We turn from gazing at the wonders of the "heavenly" skirting the bayou to gasp at another confession: "Houston," says its Chronicle, "is a great city, but it has some very small village ways. A clown in a show window is sufficient to block the sidewalk for hours with a throng of idle and curious people. The remarkable thing is that the police allow it." Sherlock Holmes tells 'Watson that he can best concentrate his thoughts in a close atmosphere. Something of the sort apparently supplies the cause of such manifestations of Houston's hump of hamlet hayseedism. Put a clown in a show window and you emphasize a prominent Houston type. Let a Dallasite eat raw turnips on a corner of Houston's main street and a crowd gathers, just as the Chronicle laments in the case of the clown. It must be the fact that the clown is penned in a limited space that "blocks the sidewalks for hours with a throng of idle and curious people;" it must be that some glaring exploitation of even the most obvious is necessary to draw the exponents of village hayseedism. It is the concentration of example in a show window. For who manifests any interest in the thousands of clowns passing along Houston's streets in the course of a single leap year? Who would think of being curious that a Houstonite eats raw turnips when seated at the red table cloth? No; it's the shop window and the street corner—not the clown and the eater of raw turnips. The only remarkable thing about the Chronicle's surprise is that it finds the fact that the police let the crowd block sidewalks, to watch the clown and the turnip feeder, remarkable. And as long as three persons can "block" a Houston sidewalk, why should the police interfere? Issue more bonds and build a sidewalk.

Fussing and Fuming.

The man who grumbles most over his wife's millinery bill is certain to keep his cigar bill from annoying the family.—Corpus Christi Caller.

We can hardly agree with that charge of inconsistency, amounting almost to hypocrisy, against the proverbial Mr. Bowser who keeps his wife on the rack for a month when she buys a "creation." This gloomy gink rarely runs up cigar bills or has his clothes pressed. His habitat is free lunching and the end seat in the open cars. It takes him longer than a woman to buy theatre tickets every two months. He wears a gold watch chain the size of a dog leash and some presentation emblem due to his past noble grandship in something or other depends from the leash. He is not welcomed when he appears in the smoking room of the City Club. He knows better than you how to play billiards or reform the currency. He is seven varieties of pest. If he smokes cigars at all they are not the sort he can run up a bill for; his cigar bill will not annoy his family but his cigars do, being usually the variety at one time produced in gross packages by the Galveston bagging and twine works.

More Abuse.

No doubt one of the democratic representatives from Massachusetts introduced a bill in the next congress to prohibit any further publication or sale of the works of John Greenleaf Whittier.—Houston Post.

Really, we wish Mr. Bailey would stick to his South Carolina anas. This slur at Massachusetts impeaches the intelligence of the New England rank of his own party and belittles its glorious victory on the fifth. There are no longer any Democratic congressmen from Massachusetts of the type of Honey Fitz. The Boston alderman who advised as sufficient the purchase of two gondolas for the public garden—a male and a female—is an extinct species. With the best families in Massachusetts from ward eleven to Pittsfield, none of the stamp that admires Mr. Wilson's nose "glar-gar-gar" we may expect no expunging of the works of Whittier. Rather will we look for a page of the late Prof. William James inserted in the Congressional Record as a part of the address of the member from Haverhill on the philosophy of the prohibition of abstinence.

Glad Report.

It is pleasing that Mr. Wilson has isolated himself for a space and is preparing for patronage, postmasters and policies. None wants his ears and only a few are still trying to get his goat. His rest consists of overseeing several hundred letters per week attending official functions and wondering if the "natives who regard him with respectful awe" have ever heard of America. Occasionally he reverts with a volume of Kipling and the look shops in Houston telegraph for a supply of Kipling revised to words of not more than three syllables. Sometimes, when his home newspapers carry a threat that Mr. Bryan is en route to the insular onions, of more than common appearance of truth, he takes his rod and leaves word he has sailed for Java. But we deny he is renewing acquaintance with his wife. He was so long a college professor that there has never been a chance for hiatus in their mutual understanding, not even the campaign. This profession creates a bond of sympathy not even the high cost of living can strain.

R. S. V. P.

(State Press, Dallas News.)

State Press was gratified a morning or two ago to find on his official excretory, a brief note from one Ash Evans, a person who lives at Bonham, saying that the writer of same had called upon the recipient during the latter's absence. S. P. does not mean to imply that he is glad the visitor came in the host's absence, but that he is glad the visitor came even if the host was unfortunate enough to be not at home, so to speak. The Evans person used to be in the newspaper business, having been born and raised on the Bonham News, which dignified old journal showed how nearly immortal it is by absolutely refusing to die under the twenty years' strange hold which the said Ashley Evans held on its neck. Indeed, the faithful old agent of publicity thrived under the Ash regime. It simply, couldn't be killed. After a struggling for a fifth of a century to put it down and out, Editor Evans gave up the struggle of trying to subvert the Bonham News and went into the real estate business. We have heard that since he changed his business he is a changed man. He now shaves twice a week and tries to discourage his auburn whiskers from bespattering his face with sunset tints. He wears form-fitting clothes of a load and vainglorious pattern and carries silver in both his trouser pockets which he rattles constantly with both hands. On the back of his head he maintains a low-crowned derby hat of a rich brown color and with curled brims. His neckwear is said invariably to run to red and green, vivid enough to make scorpions superfluous, but he insists on the scarfpin and utilizes one that is massive enough for a tack hammer. His shoes are all of patent leather and high luster, which he improves by adding varnish to, and his hosery (often seen by the cheap sort of advertisement, and being a firm believer in advertising, yet reluctant to buy advertising space, he has elected to make himself a perambulating billboard. "Anybody can glance at him and tell that his business is to show people from Mississippi.

LAND SALES AND LEASES.

Report of the State Treasurer Shows Collections for Month.

Austin, Dec. 1.—Land sales and leases for the month of November, as shown by the report of the state treasurer, were $48,325 to the credit of the available fund and $55,408 to the credit of the permanent fund. Payments of interest on school lands were again very heavy, for $421,311 is credited to public school open accounts, available fund.

Other available fund items are: Public school rentals, $275; University, $4892; blind asylum, $172; orphan asylum, $169.98.

Permanent fund items are: Public school purchases, $10; payments, $3; 257; public school open account, $50; 289; University, $234; deaf and dumb asylum, $729; lunatic asylum, $220; blind asylum, $313; orphan asylum, $352.

The state treasury continued on the deficiency basis again, and there was no money on hand for the payment of the warrants of the state employees. They were forced to ask their banks to carry them, hold their warrants, or discount them.

CRISIS IN CHINESE CABINET.

Uchiera Refuses to Accept Position Offered.

Tokio, Dec. 1.—A cabinet crisis has arisen over the refusal of the minister of war, Lieutenant General Uchiera, to accept a cabinet decision rejecting the scheme for increasing the military forces in Korea.

Premier Satomi informed the war minister that the cabinet adhered to the position. General Uchiera then indicated his intention to resign.

It is doubtful whether the emperor will accept his resignation. The press and general public support the cabinet.

Lieutenant General Uchiera was appointed minister of war April 3, 1912, to succeed General Ishimoto, who died.

Massachusetts Women to Vote.

Boston, Dec. 1.—Women will take a prominent part in this month's city election in Massachusetts. More feminine voters probably will go to the polls than ever before, although the law permits them to vote only for school board candidates. More than 8,000 women have registered in Fall River—nearly three times as many as previously were on the list.

MORNING NEWS' BIG $5,000 CONTEST OPENS THIS MORNING

First List of Candidates Will Be Published Sunday, Dec. 8—Make a Nomination at Once, It Costs Absolutely Nothing.

AMBITION AND FRIENDS NECESSARY

In Each Division Will Be Given One Five Passenger, 1913 Model Touring Car, One Player Piano, One Building Lot, Two Diamond Rings, Two Bank Accounts, Two Ladies' Solid Gold Watches.

As previously announced in Wednesday's issue, The Morning News' big contest will start this morning at 8 o'clock and judging by the number of nominations already received, this will be the liveliest campaign ever conducted in Waco or in Central Texas.

With $5,000 in valuable prizes to be awarded February 1st, it stands to reason that there will be competition for every prize in every district, and as friends and ambition are the only necessary attributes, it will not be advisable for any one who is considering entering the contest to lose any time.

The first list of candidates will be published Sunday morning, and if your name or the name of your favorite is not among them, fill out the nomination blank that appears in this issue and bring or send it to the Contest Manager at once, so that it may be included in the list at the earliest possible moment. A subscription is not necessary, but if you will include a "Starting Opportunity" Coupon it will be of great assistance in launching your campaign, and as only two of them will be accepted or counted for any candidate, it will be well to get them in today. The office will be open until 8 o'clock this evening to accommodate those who are unable to come in during business hours.

A Prize For An Effort.
This is your opportunity to secure one of the most costly and desirable gifts absolutely free. Nothing is ever gained by standing back and allowing others to secure the prizes of life. "Procrastination is the thief of time." Here is an exceptional offer in which eighteen valuable prizes will be awarded to the popular young ladies strictly upon their ambition and energy. WE EXPECT the best hustlers that can be found in this hustling country to take part in this gigantic campaign. WHY NOT BE ONE OF THEM?

Nominations.
Any person has the privilege of nominating one or more candidates. Nominations should be mailed to the contest office at once, as the names of candidates will be published in a few days. Candidates can be nominated after this date, but it is a great advantage for each to have her name in the first list published, so that her friends may not agree to work for some one else before knowing who are entering the contest.

It costs absolutely nothing to nominate a candidate.
How Ballots Are Secured.
In all cases where ballots are secured, subscriptions must be paid or prepaid. The full amount of money must be sent by mail, paid to the local agents or brought to The Morning News office.

Any young lady living in the defined territory is eligible to enter the contest.
How Territory is Divided.
The territory covered by The Waco Morning News contest will be divided into two divisions and each division shall consist of two districts. The divisions shall be known as Contest Division No. 1 and Contest Division No. 2.

District No. 1 shall consist of all of the territory within the corporate limits of the city of Waco, comprising districts Nos. 1 and 2.

District No. 2 shall consist of all of the territory outside of the corporate limits of the city of Waco, comprising districts Nos. 3 and 4.

District No. 1 shall consist of all of the city of Waco from the river north from the center line of Austin street.

District No. 2 shall consist of all of the city of Waco south of the center line of Austin street, including all of East Waco.

District No. 3 shall consist of all of the territory south of the Cotton Belt railroad, not including any towns on this line, but shall include city rural routes Nos. 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9.

District No. 4 shall consist of all of the territory north of the Cotton Belt railroad, including all towns on this line and city rural routes Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4.

It is a matter of importance to get into the race early and getting started. In a contest of this character the race is not always to the swift or to the strong, but rather to the ones who get in early, stay late, see their friends and get the votes.

There is not a prize that will be offered that will not be well worth the effort put forth in winning it, and The Waco Morning News wants to see the prizes go to those who earn them. Get in early and stay in late. That is the way to win.

A Sound Business Proposition.
The Morning News pledges absolute good faith and fairness to all people who will soon engage themselves in this campaign. This is not a "something for nothing" scheme, nor is it a scheme at all. Neither is it a charitable undertaking on the part of The Morning News. It is a business proposition, pure and simple. The object is to advertise this paper and to increase its circulation and to win a welcome in every household in the field that it covers.

The Theatres

Louisiana Lou Tonight.

"Louisiana Lou," which will be played by Harry Askins' special company for the first time here tonight, at 8:15, in the Auditorium, is founded on reason, inasmuch as there is a play beneath the fabric of fun and music that has made it the success of the season in Chicago. A same story is told by "Louisiana Lou," and every laugh and every song grows legitimately out of this story.

The character of the title is a founding. She was picked up in the street one night by Jacob Lidofski, a kindly Hebrew, in New Orleans, where he and his immigrant pal, Rodrick Konkarny, were seeking to make a living. Lidofski, broke and virtually homeless save for the room he occupied in the Konkarny's poor but happy little home, took the child to the care of Mrs. Konkarny, who gave to the founding the same tender care as to her own son, Jack. Luck changed for both Lidofski and Konkarny from the night the child was found; and at the opening of the play we find Louisiana-Lou—the name given by Lidofski because of the initials "L. L." in a locket about her neck—betrotted to Jack, but in love with Jack's pal, Nixon Holme, and Jack facing an "arranged" marriage with Lou in love with Della Fair, the pretty sister of the second Mrs. Konkarny, the first having died before the opening of the story.

It is Mardi-Gras in New Orleans when Lou returns from her Paris schooling; and the play consists of the resources employed by all four lovers to upset the plans of Lidofski and Konkarny, to unite the two families in marriage. One of the touching and beautiful scenes of the play is where Lidofski, in fear tells the founding, now a beautiful girl of seventeen years, that she is not his own child.

Hippodrome Theatre Opens Tuesday.

Managers Ingraham and Brian announce the opening of the Hippodrome Theatre Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, presenting to the amusement lovers of Waco a bill of five high-class vaudeville acts and moving pictures.

The announcement that they intend to make the Hippodrome vaudeville an amusement for everybody, is well received, and they have arranged the prices accordingly, making 500 seats at 10 cents, 500 seats at 20 cents and 500 seats at 30 cents.

This makes the price so cheap that all will be able to attend. They intend giving two performances each night, the first commencing at 7:30 and the second at 9 o'clock. The entire house will be reserved for the first show. There will be special ladies' and children's matinees on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday at children 10 cents, adults 20 cents.

The box office will open this morning at 9:30 o'clock and persons are asked to seek any further information they might desire.

The following acts are booked for Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee and night:

The shows to be seen at the Hippodrome will be identically as those offered at the Fyle theatre in Beaumont for 25, 35 and 50 cents.

One of the feature acts for the opening will be The Ellises, marvelous

What Men Who Know—Say About "Highland Place"

National Exchange Insurance & Trust Co.

Authorized Capital, $1,000,000.00

Waco, Texas, Nov. 19, 1912.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I take pleasure in saying that I have purchased a 100 foot corner on Colcord and 32nd. Streets in HIGHLAND PLACE, upon which I expect to begin building a home within the next 90 days.

HIGHLAND PLACE in my mind is one of the prettiest restricted additions in the country, being ideally situated for home purposes. I know of no other lots with conveniences that are now being installed on HIGHLAND PLACE that could be had for anything like the price of HIGHLAND PLACE LOTS. As a speculation or as a home they appeal to me as being a splendid buy and I am interesting my friends with me to build a high class neighborhood in this addition.

Yours very truly,

CHAS. A. WEATHERED,
President.

experts of mental telepathy. After this act is once seen, it is expected to contribute materially to the drawing powers of the show. This act is always a big hit. In many instances it remains at one theatre as long as two or three weeks. The Ellises stayed for twenty consecutive weeks at the White City in Chicago in 1910. Their work appeals to the masses. The skeptical are amazed and become keenly interested in their work, as well as the superstitious. Exclamations of surprise and astonishment are common when this act is witnessed. The Ellises stand pre-eminent among mind readers and have on file columns of flattering press notices. They have given private demonstrations before men of science under rigid test conditions and have never failed to convince the observing that their work is genuine. The enunciation of the lady is perfect; her voice is clear and pleasing to the ear. This adds to the enjoyment, for there are mind reading stunts in which she describes old relics, souvenirs, emblems, and all articles submitted by an audience accurately and minutely. She reads the most difficult names and addresses from cards, letters, receipts and the like, without having any more intimate knowledge of them than the fact that they are handed to her manager. The work of The Ellises is rapid, clean cut and convincing and the prevailing opinion is that Mrs. Ellis, who gets the impressions blindfolded on the stage is endowed by nature with a remarkable talent or a supernatural power.

Malvern Acrobats.
The Ellises will be only one of several big cards to open the Hippodrome under its new policy. The Malvern troupe of acrobats will astonish local theatre-goers by their agility and grace. There is a liddle in the troupe who is just as accomplished as his seniors. A lady also participates in the stunts.

The Aeroplane Girl.
The Aeroplane Girl is still another novelty announced for the opening show. This is a vaudeville adaptation of the latest craze. While aviators fly through the air, Miss Lula Atkins is doing similar stunts in the auditoriums of theatres. It is an act so different from anything that has been seen in Waco before that it can be predicted as certain to score one of the hits of the bill. It is the highest type of vaudeville entertainment. The auditorium is darkened; a fluttering sound is heard as though a giant bird were flapping its wings, preparing for flight. Directly an aircraft speeds through the auditorium, circling here and there and performing all sorts of stunts. Miss Atkins drives it, and at the same time sings pretty songs and attracts by her personality.

Texas Tommy Dancers.
Hathaway and Mack, Texas Tommy dancers, will appear on the opening bill. This act was recently seen at the Royal Theatre in San Antonio, Texas, where it was voted the sensation of the year. Aria Hathaway is a beautiful woman and gets splendid assistance from her handsome partner.

May Evans, a Whistler.
May Evans will entertain with whistling and imitations. She will offer a popular melody which has bits from the latest ragtime successes and in the way of classical material offers "When the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold." Miss Evans is the leading exponent of this style of entertainment. She has played all of the leading theatres in the country. The Boston Post says of her: "May Evans is a young woman who whistles. She does that so well, however, and so demurely, that the big audience was quite willing she should do it several times. The result was that Miss Evans proved herself a clever imitator of all kinds of birds, to the great satisfaction of all." The Worcester, Mass. Telegram says: "May Evans produces a novelty for a woman. Miss Evans offers a unique specialty by whistling several popular songs and gives some imitations that are beyond the powers of many well known imitators. Her description of a train moving out of a station is one of the best things of the kind ever seen in Worcester. The puffing of the steam engine, the several sounds of the engine whistle and the chugging of the drivers were unusually realistic." The Dramatic Mirror says: "May Evans, a whistler and imitator, exhibited unusual talent and ability. She goes through her work in a quiet, unassuming manner, which goes a great way towards catching the sympathy of the audience. Her act was a decided hit."

Get Rich Quick Wallingford.
Geo. M. Cohan, as a writer of comedy without the adornments, lingerie and perversion of classic compositions to fit a popular tune, which have made him a recognized factor in America, is a new development in the career of that versatile young man. He has taken the sketches of Chester and made a comedy of highway finances named "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," which appears at the Auditorium Thursday night.

The piece was the dominating attraction at the Geo. M. Cohan Theatre in New York for one year, and a run of almost equal length has been recorded in Chicago.

"Get Rich Quick Wallingford" is a comedy with a distinctly up-lift motif, and, while at no time preachy, in the sense of a sermon, it unquestionably points a moral.

Although the plot is George Randolph Chester's, the moulding of the character of Wallingford, the promoter of wild-cat schemes who regains the little country town and insidiously spreads the virus of speculation among its inhabitants, is characteristically Cohanesque. Wallingford is as clever a rascal as ever waylaid a traveler on the highway, but the elements of humor that enter into his composition make him a hero. Cohan has given him the benefit of all his experience as a laugh-maker and the result is a humorous rascal—or rather two rascals—tripped out in the best vestments of that genius which laughingly mingles characterization with the unique language of the pave.

USE CARE GROWING ASPARAGUS

Advice of the Department of Agriculture To Those Who Cultivate.

Breeders and growers of asparagus are advised by the U. S. department of agriculture through Bulletin 263, Bureau of Plant Industry, to take up pedigree breeding and to use careful methods of production in order to keep rust from the plant.

On the subject the Bulletin says: "Although the breeding work carried on with asparagus will eventually lead to the control of rust in commercial plantings, several years must elapse before this result will become effective. Meanwhile it is necessary to take all measures practicable to prevent the destruction of existing fields of asparagus by the rust. To this end the main factor is to keep the rust away from the fields in summer just as long as possible.

"Wild asparagus growing around the borders of the fields, along fences and ditches is one of the worst enemies of the grower. These wild plants act as infection centers and their influence can be easily traced later in the season when the cutting beds have grown up. Wild plants wherever found should be dug up and burned. New beds should be planted at only rare intervals of time and then if possible where they will be to the windward of a cutting bed. Keep the seedlings out of the cutting bed at least let none stay in at the time the bed is allowed to grow up after the cutting season. Allow no poor shoots to grow up in the cutting field. Keep down every shoot of asparagus until the middle of June and see the neighboring farmers do the same. In the fall the tops should be removed carefully from 1-year-old beds that are not to be cut the next year. This will in a large measure reduce the liability of infection from this source."

Pauline Frederick has returned to the stage and is doing splendid work with Mme. Simone's company.

An international labor congress will be held in Austria in the year 1913.

COTTON GOODS STRONG FINANCES OF THE WEEK

ACTIVE MARKET OF PAST WEEK
SHOWS GENERAL ADVANCE.

Buying Continues Steady and Jobbers
Are Able to Secure Deliveries
They Require.

New York, Dec. 1.—The cotton goods markets were strong and active during the week and advances were announced in many lines of merchandise. Fine carded yarn bleached sheetings are higher by half a cent a yard and wide sheetings are either at value or offered at advances on the high grades. Wide print cloths are a full ¼¢ a yard up and colored cottons are firmer with advances named in some lines.

Buying has been steady and many jobbers who have been holding off are now unable to secure the nearby deliveries they will require. Bidding for spot goods, which are very scarce, has caused the uplift in prices, although cotton has been high, the element of demand for goods has been very powerful at the moment when supplies are restricted. There is still great difficulty in getting a full program from operatives. The mills could run in full, as there are orders enough, but many of them have been unable for some months to obtain better than an 85 per cent output.

Jobbers in the west report steady sales and distribution is unquestionably broadening in the eastern industrial centers. Fall River sold 210,000 pieces of print cloths last week, of which but 70,000 were for spot shipment. Prices on cotton goods are as follows:

Print cloths, 28-inch, 64x64's, 4 1-16; 64x68's, 3 15-16; 38½-inch, 64x64's, 5½¢; brown sheetings, southern standards, 8 cents; denim, 3-ounce, 14¢; tickings, 8-ounce, 13½¢; standard staple prints, 5½¢; standard staple ginghams, 6½¢; dress ginghams, 9½¢.

STOCK DEALS ON STRICT SCALE.
MONEY SUPPLY IS LIMITED.

Easing of Cash Rate Not Expected
Until After New Year's—Strain
Somewhat Relaxes.

New York, Dec. 1.—Dealings in stock last week were on a restricted scale, with the mid-week Thanksgiving holiday aggravating the disinclination to extend commitments. Limited supplies in the money market constituted the main factor of restraint on speculation. Early in the week the renewal rate quoted at the stock exchange was the highest since the close of 1907, when the markets were emerging from the effects of the panic.

The foreign exchange rate also fell to the limit and the call loan rate rose to a level for which the same period must be sought for a parallel. The meagre engagements of gold for import, in spite of these conditions, indicate the continuance of worldwide strain in money markets.

The immediate strain in New York is expected to relax with the issuance of the expected call from the controller for reports of conditions of national banks, the payment of December settlements and a reflux of cash sent to Canada last week for banks there in preparation for the yearly balance sheets made up on November 30.

Actual easing on money rates obviously is not looked for until the turn of the year. Stiffness of discount rates abroad and premiums on time loans for the shorter periods in New York are the index of this expectation. The turn in the tide of the currency movement in the interior will bring the periodical passing of the strain of the crop movement requirements.

Elements of restraint, it is agreed, made for safety at this time by keeping within bounds a spirit of enterprise which might otherwise run to excess, with the danger of early reaction. Similar views are expressed regarding the effect of the prospective tariff revision from sources where alarm was professed formerly.

ELKS' MEMORIAL TRIBUTE TO DEAD

PHOTOGRAPHS OF THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED AWAY ARE SHOWN.

AN ADDRESS BY W. W. HAIR

Talks of the Benevolence of the Order, Judge Sam R. Scott's Letter, Talk by Mr. Hirschberg.

Memorial services were held throughout the United States Sunday by the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Waco Lodge No. 166 commemorated the occasion with impressive ceremonies at the Hippodrome theatre. Tribute was paid to "our honored dead" by several hundred members of the local lodge. A program of music, memorial services and a memorial and local memorial addresses was given.

Wherever there is an Elks lodge some of the members gathered to listen to the mystic roll call to those who will never answer here. It was an occasion not so much to eulogize those who have their places among the honored dead as to refresh memories of the day when they, too, gathered to commemorate the ones who preceded them, to answer the final call and to bring back the better deeds of their lives.

As the photographs of the thirty-two members of the honored dead were flashed on the canvas by means of a moving picture machine and the secretary called the names, brother Elks were reminded of every absent member of the local lodge.

Mr. Hair's Address.
"The day has come, not gone," reminded W. W. Hair of Temple, who delivered the memorial address following the opening memorial service conducted by Exalted Ruler Will Carroll, the opening ode and the invocation by Chaplain A. R. McCollum, with music, intervening.

"The same power that fashions the rainbow, figures the hills and hollows and rules the destiny of the entire universe, is moving us slowly to our appointed end, and yet, for a little while the mist will begin to gather, the sunbeams will flick about the hill and the final message will come, and we will join our honored dead in the great beyond," continued Mr. Hair.

"Nature was the law in the beginning of the world. Following the Christian era, when love thy neighbor as thou love thyself prevailed, great strides were made, but in these modern times the wind no longer makes quail, makes the hills and hollows dread, and it was necessary to organize. One of the youngest, ablest and most esteemed lodges in the United States today is the Benevolent Order of Elks. It is strictly an American order. It teaches patriotism—you will never find an Elks hall without Old Glory being used generously in decorating—teaches us to visit the sick, help the widow, help one another, and above all, it teaches honesty. What better could be said of a man than to say he is honest? Also it teaches justice, not that justice that is ruled by the hand of might, but that hidden justice which is the conscience of man, that is ruled by a power higher than ours.

"This is an age of fraternity. The Elks are here today in brotherhood to pay tribute to our honored dead. Let us not say because one of the honored list did not amass a fortune, write a book, acquire public fame and transform some established precedent to get his name and picture hung high in the hall of fame that he was not useful and the world is no better because he lived, for when he passed away thousands of hearts were sad. He was loved by men and women, regardless of who he was, and what more is life?

"Great cities have crumbled, great men have been forgotten, many world-famous accomplishments have been surpassed and forgotten, all of the glory of art has not retained its high place, for candor and color are not permanent. Then, we ask, are there no monuments and pictures hung high in the hall of fame that he was not useful and the world is no better because he lived, for when he passed away thousands of hearts were sad. He was loved by men and women, regardless of who he was, and what more is life?

"Regardless of where in the favored land an Elks may be today, he is paying tribute to those who have been called. The day is one to remind us that we, too, must leave this earth and answer the mystic roll call."

Judge Scott's Tribute.
Judge Sam R. Scott was unexpectedly called from the city yesterday and was unable to deliver the local memorial address. Sol Hirschberg, who delivered the first memorial address in Waco ten years ago, ally took his place. Before making any remarks, Mr. Hirschberg read the following letter:

"Dear Brothers—Circumstances over which I had no control caused me to leave the city this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, therefore it will be impossible for me to take part in the exercises; but I will not let the occasion go by without at least saying a word for our departed brothers.

"The term, 'a good man,' is often applied to many men who do not belong to the Elks, and they no doubt deserve the term 'good man.' But when we say of him, 'he is a good man,' and we find in searching his career that he was a man who never spoke evil of others, never charged a fellow-being with wrong doing or of evil thoughts unless he has proof positive, and while he recognized that man possessed faults, yet, those of his brothers he wrote lightly on the sands of time, in order that the gentle breeze from whatsoever source it might come, would erase the record and let the world forget it.

"Such was the character of our deceased brothers. They were, indeed, good men.

"Upon the roll of absent brothers, there appears one who deserves special mention. He deserves all of the kind and good things which may be or could be said about him. I refer to Brother John Fall. God bless his memory! He was kind, generous, loving, charitable, brave and a true Christian man. No man ever lived who possessed a bigger heart, a grander soul, or a more charitable and loving disposition; all who knew him loved him—men, women and children, the rich, the poor, the native born, the foreign born as well. Oh, he was one of God's noblemen.

"I sincerely believe that the recording angel will search the records of life in vain for an entry against Brother Fall.

"SAM R. SCOTT."
Mr. Hirschberg's Tribute.
"None were dead ten years ago when I delivered the first memorial address. Thirty-two are dead now. Dr. H. Behrens was the first to pass away. He was a grand, a noble man, loved and respected by all. Although it seems strange, he was the first to be summoned, and John Fall was first during the year of 1912. Two men who stood for the best of Elksdom passed thus," continued Mr. Hirschberg.

"The photographs thrown on the canvas brought those gone before closer to us, and no doubt many in the audience can recall some happy incident during the lifetime of many of the honored dead and at least can remember some pleasant incident. I will remember the brotherly love, communion, good fellowship, love, charity and protection that bound us into the great order of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

The downpour of rain before the hour of the services probably kept several away. The stage of the theatre was decorated attractively for the occasion. A row of palms across the front, the emblem of the order, surrounded with American flags for a background, presented a pretty scene. The stand in the center with the Elks' horns and a vase of flowers, climaxed the effect.

The symphony orchestra furnished the music. Special numbers were given by Mrs. F. H. Wheeler and H. J. Havelock, Miss Eldora Stanford and Howell James.

WACO CITY MISSION.

Interested Crowds Attend Both Afternoon and Evening Services.

The Christian services Sunday at Fifth and Austin streets over the American Express company and under the auspices of the Waco City Missionary association, were well attended. Superintendent I. S. Boyles led. Good takes were made by J. E. McConnell, J. J. Terrell, Tom Hamilton, Oscar Myre and others. A solo by Mrs. B. J. Byars was a feature.

It was the first meeting at the new hall and the promising beginning inspired the workers. Scores pledged their support to Superintendent Boyles, agreeing to answer a call to give assistance at any time. The sermon of Mr. Boyles in the evening was very inspiring and resulted in four conversions. Two men came forward in the afternoon for prayer.

It was an interesting crowd that attended both the afternoon and evening services. Persons in all walks of life were present. The man with the every-day garments was made to feel welcome and invited to tell his friends to come.

Rev. F. H. Paulk will preach at the mission hall tonight at 7:30 o'clock. The meetings continue every night this week. All church denominations are supporting Superintendent Boyles, and the pastors and laymen of different churches have signified their willingness to help continue the meetings several weeks.

They Have Been Put on Sale at All Drug Stores Tonight.

Twenty-five thousand Red Cross stamps have been distributed in Waco by the Waco division of the Texas anti-tuberculosis association, of which Mrs. F. J. Lennox is president. They are now on sale at all of the drug stores, many of the cigar stores, and arrangements will be made at once to sell the stamps at the hotels. Two weeks prior to Christmas, the stamps will be sold from a booth at the post-office.

In addition, all of the club women of the city have agreed to lend their personal assistance and will canvass the suburban residence districts of the city.

The association expects to find a ready sale for many thousand stamps. It desires that every Christmas gift that is mailed from Waco bear as many Red Cross stamps as postage stamps.

Breaks Window With Rock.

A cluster of bottles of wines and whiskies in the show window of J. A. Early on Franklin street was too great a temptation to Bud Tinsley, farmer north of the city. At 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning he caved in one side of the window with a rock, but before he could satisfy his thirst Policeman Landrum arrested him.

"We were the only two persons in the block," said Policeman Landrum in discussing the incident. "I don't know why Bud did not see me for I saw him all of the time, even saw him pick up the rock, but didn't realize what he was going to do until I heard the window crash."

PHILOSOPHY OF SERVICE, TEXT

REV. F. N. CALVIN DELIVERED SERMON TO LARGE AUDIENCE.

18 PERSONS JOIN THE CHURCH

Return of Pastor to Central Christian Church is Met With Success. Last Night's Address.

Rev. F. N. Calvin is getting a grip on the situation at the Central Christian church, where he served seven years and from which he has been absent fourteen years.

He has received eighteen additions into that church during the two months he has been here. His audiences are increasing each Sunday.

He preached last evening on "The Philosophy of Delightful Service." He took for his text First Corinthians, xiii:8. He said in part:

"Dr. Drummond has declared love the greatest thing in the world. There is a profound philosophy in this declaration. 'All voluntary action is the result of motive. But motive is not necessarily a virtue. It may be good, or it may be bad. Motive impels, but it impels to evil as well as to good. It also impels to good as well as to evil. The word is often misused, restricting it to the bad sense.

"We say, 'He had a motive for doing that.' Of course he had a motive. The action was a voluntary one. But it was not necessarily an evil motive. Motive is our master. Motive is the manifying of action.

"I want us, this evening, to study the motive—first, that prompts to action; second, that always prompts to action; third, that always to good; fourth, that never fails; fifth, that makes all doing a pleasure.

"Our study may justly be called, 'the philosophy of delightful service.' Our text suggests what this motive is. It says, 'Love never faileth.' How shall we define love? It is one of those beautiful words of our language that has been reduced to a simple element. It is undefinable and yet it is understood by all. What is a definition? It is putting a boundary around. Love includes so much and excludes so much that to define it is equivalent to defining God. It is best defined by describing it, or telling what it does. Paul wrote the thirteen chapters of First Corinthians to give us his definition of love.

What Love Does.
"Love sees what no physical eye sees, and hears what no ear hears. Love transmutes poison into food. Love speaks a universal language. Love gives superhuman strength to the tired mother by the bedside of her sick child. Love goes on the battlefield, is indifferent to danger, and amid shot and shell administers the soothing liquid or holds the sup of cold water to the parched lips of the dying soldier. Love breaks the bonds of custom and social fastidiousness and with outstretched arms welcomes the prodigal home again. Love defies difficulties. Love makes all service a pleasure.

What We Do When in Love.
"We will bear burdens, go to inconveniences, do irksome tasks—yes, find pleasure in doing what we otherwise would not think of doing, all because we love the one for whom we are doing. Men endure hardships, cross the ocean, travel the mountains, go to the ends of the earth, sacrifice home, live in ice or snow or swelter in the torrid zone—yes, they find pleasure in doing all this if it but be pleasing to some loved one. Love knows no limitations. It is as infinite as God. It is love that creates the granite. It will abide the wreck of worlds. When the marble shall have crumbled, when the mountains shall have become dust and when the sea is no more, love will live. Love abides forever. Love never fails.

"Now, we understand why Jesus affirmed so positively, 'If you love me, you will keep my commandments.' Again, He said, 'that hateth my commandments shall see death. He that loveth me—John xiv:15-21.

"All of this is applicable to church life. The church is the representative of Christ. Christ is the representative of God. If we love God, we will honor and serve Him. If we honor and serve God we will be true to His church. Sometimes one asks, 'How may I know whether I love God or not?' Apply the above illustrations and see if you can tell whether you love some dear one on earth. Study the motives governing your actions. First, what motive brought you into the church? Second, what motive keeps you in the church? Third, what motive prompts you to attend the services? Fourth, what motive prompts you to help support the church, or take part in its work? 'Is it because you love? Because you love God? Love Christ? Love the people? Love the services? If so, nothing can separate you from them.

Key to Falling Away.
"We have heard so much backsliding or indifference on the part of many church members. They come into the church from some lower motive than love of Christ. Possibly they admired the thoughts of the minister or maybe they were moved by his eloquence. Possibly they had some dream of selfish gratification—all of which have passed away. Paul says, 'Whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away. So with all these other motives—they shall lose their power.

If you are in the church because of love, you will attend the services of God's house, of course you will. You help to support the work, certainly. Nothing but an uncontrollable influence can keep you from it. 'Imagine a young man, who has a sweetheart, needing to be invited and waited on by committees and begged to get him to go where she is, or where she is to be honored, or to get him to do some favor for her. Rather, it would take an active and strong committee to keep him away.

"Love is not under the control of the will. I do not love God, I am not to be blamed.

"Love is a fine art, and may be cultivated. Paul said, 'what I once hated now I love.' Given, first, a desire to love; second, a lovable object—and one will love.

"Christianity presents a lovable object, the chiefest among ten thousand and the one altogether lovely. Then, if you do not love, wherein does the fault lie?"

BOYS ARE TOLD OF HYPOCRISY

SEVERAL HUNDRED GATHERED AT THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH HEAR ADDRESS.

MAKE YOUR POSITION KNOWN

Advice Given to Young Men—Good Needs Be Exploited, Declares L. W. Dunn.

The fellow who pretends to be better than he is, the fellow who pretends to be worse than he is, and the fellow who does not pretend to be as good as he really is—these three forms of hypocrisy were discussed by L. W. Dunn at a meeting for boys held in the First Presbyterian church at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and attended by several hundred persons.

In the ordinary acceptance of the term "hypocrite," Mr. Dunn declared that it meant the fellow who posed as being better than he really is. The term itself, has become to be repulsive to all. The boy who prays at church on Sunday, and then preys on his neighbor on Monday is the boy to be classed under this first definition of the word, he said.

He cited the fact that although Christ was always at work for humanity and bore love and kindness in his heart for all, yet the Bible shows that he was a man of strong, controlled passions, and that he never displayed them more forcefully than in his condemnation of the hypocrite. The second kind of hypocrite, the fellow who professes to be worse than he is, who blows how much he knows of "life," tells smutty stories and pretends to be a veritable desperado, he said, can be found in almost any high school. He is the sort of fellow who takes pride in being considered "pretty tough."

Mr. Dunn said that he remembered one boy in his own high school days, one of the best-hearted fellows who ever trod the streets, who pretended to be far worse than he really was. He would tell the smutty story, brag of his "experiences," most often fiction, and took delight in having the other fellows listen to his yarns. In every way he endeavored to have his companions consider him "tough."

The third hypocrite, he declared, is the "drifter," the fellow who lets things slide and who does not let it be known how he is away down in his heart. He thinks right, he has the right sort of feeling and the right sort of desires and he delights to live the right sort of life, but he does not make his position plain to his companions, he does not definitely let it be known that he is standing on one side of the line, and not astride of it.

Drifting Dangerous Practice.
The drifting, "let-her-slide" tendency is one of the greatest dangers of high school life, one of the greatest dangers which besets the boy, almost unawares, and which he seldom speaks of and the all important thing for him to do is to make it apparent just how good he is, to let the other fellows know where he stands—and then to stand there.

In the school it is easy, said Mr. Dunn, for facts to gain a foothold. Such small things as the manner in which a boy has hair trimmed, or the necessity for socks and tie to match, the fellow who allows himself to drift along, following one fad after another, he declared, will soon find that he has trained himself to be a "follower," not a leader. He will find the way of a "follower" easier if it is broad and he will take the path which leads to evil. This sort of fellow is the sort whose backbone is made of cooked macaroni. The time comes in his life, as every boy when he reaches a definite decision and when he does, to make it effective, he must let his comrades know just what it is and where he stands.

Many times, he said, the boy shirks this responsibility for fear the other fellows will think he believes he is better than he is, or for fear that being one phase of a hypocrite—the kind which pretends to be better than he really is.

The fellow who declares himself, said the speaker, is the fellow who places himself in a position for service. The man who goes when he is called, the fellow who does not think he is a better player than the others who are out. He merely places himself in a position to be made use of by the team. The cases, he said, were similar.

Often the boy will say: "If I am personally clean why should I say anything about it? Why not let the other fellows alone and continue along the right path myself?"

Stand Will Aid Others.
The reason the men should come out is not only because of the moral courage he will find engendered in himself by the movement and the attendant lessening of temptation, but because of the moral effect it will have upon his comrades. One man, he said, can form the nucleus for good which will influence entire school or church.

He declared that it did not seem possible that the delegates to the Older Boys' conference could have failed to secure some new ideas and some new strength through the attendance upon the meetings in Waco. These results would prove barren, he declared, if they returned to their home cities and failed to come out in their true colors, to bear fruit.

He urged that the boys reach their

CONGRESS TO HASTE WORK

SIXTY-SECOND BODY ASSEMBLES AT NOON FOR FINAL ACTS.

PROGRAMS CROWDED

FIFTEEN APPROPRIATION BILLS CARRY OVER $1,000,000,000.

DEMOCRATS LOOKING AHEAD

Plans Will Be Made for Extra Session to Be Called By Wilson in Spring.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The expiring sixty-second congress will assemble at noon tomorrow for its final work. In the brief period remaining before constitutional limitations bring it to an end and turns many of its members back into private life, fifteen appropriation bills, carrying over a billion dollars for the support of the government, must be passed, the impeachment of Judge Archbald of the commerce court must be tried in the senate, many investigating committees must conclude inquiries and make their reports, and scores of legislative matters must be disposed of.

Throughout the session will run the preparatory work for the extra session to be called soon after President-elect Wilson takes office on March 4. Committees, pursuant to this, will thresh out questions of tariff, currency and anti-trust legislation, aiming to have democratic policies shaped and democratic plans made before the new administration comes in.

It is assured, leaders say, that there will be no tariff legislation this winter. Neither is it expected that the currency or anti-trust problems will receive much attention, the principal work of the session being confined to preparation for the democratic administration and the enactment of some of the more important bills pending.

Important bills to receive attention include the bill for a department of labor, which Senator Borah said today would be presented for immediate action; the Sheppard-Kenyon bill preventing shipments of liquor into "dry" states; the Page bill, to give federal aid to vocational agricultural schools; and the resolution for a constitutional amendment limiting a president to a single term of six years.

Members have been slow in reporting in Washington, and the session will not get under way until the following day.

A sub-committee has completed the first appropriation bill, and it will be passed on by the full committee on appropriations tomorrow.

This measure carries appropriations for legislative, executive and judicial salaries.

The impeachment trial of Judge Archbald will engross the senate during the session.

Several new inquiries are in prospect. The house judiciary committee will begin an inquiry into anti-trust problems at the session, and the hope that some amendments to the anti-trust law can be recommended before congress adjourns.

In the "money trust" investigation, an effort will be made to obtain a partial report before the session ends.

Many other investigations, including the so-called "shipping trust," and the awarding of contracts for army and navy ships must be concluded before March 4.

Senators would not venture opinions as to the outcome in the selection of a president. Since the death of Senator Frye, president pro-tempore, the senate has been unable to select a successor. The progressives refused to vote either for the republican candidate, Senator Gallinger, or the democratic candidate, Senator Bacon, and the two have acted alternately as president by unanimous consent.

When it convenes tomorrow the senate will face the prospect of an immediate adjournment for the inauguration of the new president.

Patrick Seeks to Have Will Declared Forgery, Probated

No Public Action Has Been Taken in Matter, However, So Far as Is Known.

New York, Dec. 1.—A concentrated effort to probate the last will of William Marsh Rice by Albert T. Patrick and his friends can be expected as the next move of the man who Governor Dix pardoned last Wednesday, according to his own statement. At Patrick's trial for murdering the old millionaire the will was declared a forgery.

The determination of Patrick to contest the will probated and seek to probate the second will of Rice was announced Friday, when Patrick said that to vindicate himself he must prove the genuineness of the second will.

The Rice will probated left the bulk of the amassed fortune to the trustees of the Rice Institute at Houston, Texas. The second will, which the state alleges a forgery, virtually gives Patrick control of the millions to be held and used to his discretion for the benefit of worthy public institutions.

AMNESTY MAY BE OFFERED REBELS

NEW MINISTER OF MEXICO INTERIOR TO PLEAD FOR PEACE.

Believe Fear of Execution

With This Removed—Engagements Decrease Daily in Number.

Mexico City, Dec. 1.—Convicted that hundreds of rebels in the states of Durango, Coahuila and Southern Chihuahua are continuing their operations merely because they believe surrender would mean summary execution, Rafael Hernandez, new minister of the interior, announced today he would attempt to gain for them a promise of amnesty.

Cheche Campos and Leon Argandoña, officers in Orozco's organization, are the chief rebel leaders in those districts, and several engagements have been fought during the latter part of the week, the government as usual announcing victories.

These and allied leaders have been making slight raids on small outposts, confining themselves for the most part to evading encounters with the superior federal force. The chief country is practically at their mercy and the federal soldiers are able to accomplish little more than garrison the larger towns.

Minister Hernandez is confident that the rurales who report to his department, will be able to be more effective than the regular troops and, aiming at this, he has conferred with General De La Vega, commander-in-chief of the rural guard.

Hernandez has issued a general order to the rurales to command horses when needed, giving receipts to the suppliers and notifying the government. The rurales have complained that frequently because of inferior mounts they are unable to follow the insurgents.

It also is believed this will prevent the rebels from obtaining horses and will assure the owners of payment.

It was suggested by complaints of raids from the ranch owners. One of the most serious reports as to the whereabouts of General Orozco, the most credited is the report that he has re-appeared at the head of some hundreds of men east of Olinaria, Chihuahua, after recuperating from a serious sickness.

The government professes satisfaction at the improvement in the general situation. In the state of Oaxaca some diminution in activity is apparent after a federal campaign of destruction and summary executions.

Engagements Decrease in Number. Throughout the republic the number of engagements has decreased. On the five were reported today. In one brush yesterday the federalists retired after eight hours' fighting. On the arrival of a fresh supply of ammunition, the federalists resumed the offensive with the result of routing the rebels.

The governor of Vera Cruz reported that, with the capture of General Bravo near Texaco, the last band of rebels in the state has been exterminated.

Francisco De La Barra, the former provisional president, is one of the candidates for the election today for the governorship of the state of Mexico, but it is impossible to learn even the probable result.

The Mexicans are not wholly reassured by the Washington declarations and are keenly interested in the proposed visit of four American battle-ships to Vera Cruz and the motive for their coming.

Much interest is displayed in the character of the Mexican note replying to that which the United States sent to Mexico in September. It is no secret that the American note is not pleasing to the Mexican government, and the failure of the Mexican foreign office to discuss the nature of the reply gives some basis for believing it is not entirely pleasing to the American government.

5 MORE BOYS ATTEMPT ESCAPE

YOUTHFUL INMATES OF STATE INSTITUTION AT GATESVILLE ARE RECAPTURED.

COLQUITT EXPECTED TODAY

Quiet Prevails Sunday—Exposure of Conditions Endorsed By Citizens Who Commend Waco News.

Gatesville, Dec. 1.—Five boys from the juvenile building of the State Training institution, three miles east of here, made a break for freedom Saturday evening but were speedily caught by the guards near the building. This is the second occurrence of attempted escapes in two days, four boys having made a run late Friday afternoon. It is not known what punishment, if any, was meted out to these five boys last night. The group that made the attempt Friday was composed of the building devoted to the smaller boys.

It was quiet today at the institution and there have been no developments along any line of the reorganization of teaching and guard staffs contemplated by the superintendent as the result of Tuesday's resignations. It is expected nothing definite will be ordered in this respect until after the visit of Governor Colquitt. The governor is expected to arrive here tomorrow night, and to begin his investigation of conditions at the institution, and conference with the board of trustees.

The staff articles on conditions at the institution that were published in today's Waco Morning News have been discussed with much interest throughout the city, and every copy of the newspaper was snatched up immediately. The report and the Waco News' position editorially as to the situation on the hill are highly commended by many citizens here, and it is believed, these reports mark the beginning of important changes at the institution. It is the consensus of opinion here that changes along most of the lines indicated by the Waco News writers are greatly needed.

Hickey was not asked about these cases today. In his confession, he told of only three homicides, the murder of Josephs and Kruck boys, in 1883; the strangulation of Michael Kruck, the New York newsboy, in 1902, and the Josephs boy in 1911. He has repeatedly stated that these are his only victims.

George Josephs, father of the murdered boy, called at the prison but was not permitted to see Hickey today.

Tomorrow Hickey will be arraigned to plead to the charge of killing the Josephs boy. He will plead not guilty and be remanded to jail to await trial.

Fort Worth, Dec. 1.—Final arguments in the case of John Beal Sneed will be made today and Judge Swayne has promised that the case will be given the jury this afternoon or night.

The closing of the arguments marks the completion of some of the most dramatic pleas ever made in a Texas court and with the handing of the case into the jurors' care for a verdict, the curtain drops on a stage which held thousands of attention for the past two weeks.

All Texas awaits the verdict on which depends the future court procedure in another case against Sneed, that of killing Al Boyce, Jr., last September.

MINISTER REGAINS SIGHT.

Pastor Went Blind Twenty-Eight Years Ago.

Oklahoma City, Dec. 1.—Rev. G. G. Rupert, a minister in the Seventh Day Adventist church of this city, has just had his vision restored after twenty-eight years of darkness. In 1884 at Birmingham, Ohio, Rupert was sitting in his pulpit with his hands over his face and upon removing them, discovered he had become blind. Rupert, until a week ago had never seen his second wife.

On November 4, his little grandson flipped a piece of tin over a rule over his head and struck Rupert on one of his eyelids. Applications of hot clothes applied to draw the pain were removed and the afflicted man realized his eyesight had partially returned and continued to improve until today he can read.

NEW PASSPORT TREATY BEING CONSIDERED; SAYS SULZER

"United States Will Take No Step Backward," Declares Governor-Elect of New York.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Chairman Sulzer of the foreign affairs committee of the house and Governor-elect of New York, today said that a new treaty is being negotiated and that the United States will take no step backward.

On the question of the discrimination against American passports.

Mr. Sulzer secured the passage by the house a year ago of the resolution demanding the abrogation of the Russian treaty of 1912, because of discrimination against Americans of Jewish descent. The treaty expires January 1.

"A new treaty is being negotiated," said Mr. Sulzer. "The matter is progressing favorably. The government of the United States will take no step backward on a passport question and no treaty will meet with the approval of the congress unless all passports are recognized, regardless of race or religion, and the doctrine of expulsion is recognized by the contracting parties."

Constantinople, Dec. 1. (Midnight).—The signing of the protocol of the armistice has been postponed until Tuesday in order to give an opportunity to the representatives of all of the allies to sign.

The meetings of the delegates in the peace negotiations have taken place near the bridge spanning the river Karasu, between Tchatalja and Hademkenk. The Bulgarians arrived on both Tuesday and Wednesday. On Thursday Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, entertained at luncheon. The Turks arrived early but there was no sign of the Bulgarians.

Presently the approach of a train from Tchatalja was reported. Nazim Pasha was on the balcony, and the Bulgarians could repair the bridges blown up. A Bulgarian train soon appeared, however, and fourteen sat down to luncheon. It seemed a cordial gathering.

The sultan yesterday sent salutations to the troops with gifts of tobacco.

HICKEY MUST PLEAD OWN DEFENSE

CONFESSED MURDERER OF BOYS TO BE IN COURT TODAY.

Parents of Other Children Who Disappeared Ask Police to Quiz Prisoner About Them.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 1.—The police received today several dispatches relating to the death or disappearance of children in various cities and requesting that J. Frank Hickey, the confessed boy murderer, under arrest here on a charge of killing seven-year-old Joseph Josephs of Lackawanna, be questioned regarding them.

A despatch from Superintendent McQuade, of the department of schools, Pittsburg, Pa., told of an assault on Lawrence Friel, a 14-year-old boy of Allegheny in December, 1909.

The assault resembled the manner in which Hickey confessed he put to death the Josephs and Kruck boys. Young Friel was given whiskey, strangled and left to die in a vacant house.

Fort Worth, Dec. 1.—Final arguments in the case of John Beal Sneed will be made today and Judge Swayne has promised that the case will be given the jury this afternoon or night.

The closing of the arguments marks the completion of some of the most dramatic pleas ever made in a Texas court and with the handing of the case into the jurors' care for a verdict, the curtain drops on a stage which held thousands of attention for the past two weeks.

All Texas awaits the verdict on which depends the future court procedure in another case against Sneed, that of killing Al Boyce, Jr., last September.

CHURCH FEDERATION TO MEET

Delegates of Thirty-Two Denominations to Represent 17,000,000 Members at Chicago Dec. 4 to 9.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—The federal council of the churches of Christ in America, representing thirty-two denominations, will meet in Chicago December 4 to 9 to review federation work on a nation-wide scale. More than 17,000,000 church members will be represented by the delegates.

Formal adoption of a new social creed, which is to be the social work standard of all the churches included in the federation, is to be one of the most important acts of the conference.

The adoption of a common religious creed is forbidden by the federal council, which is to be the basis of the civic work of the churches, furtherance of which is a leading purpose of the council. The new features of the social creed are:

The church must stand for: The protection of family by the single standard of purity, regulation of marriage and proper housing.

The fullest development of the child by recreation.

The abatement and prevention of poverty.

For the conservation of health.

For safeguarding the right of all men to an opportunity for self-maintenance and for protection of workers from the hardships of enforced unemployment.

The new feature of the social creed are intended to supplement and bring up to date the humanitarian provisions of the social creed of the council, which has been standing for four years. The old provision, abolition of child labor, living wage, reduction of hours of labor, equitable division of the products of the industry and protection of women workers are the chief features of the existing creed.

Newspapers Are Hopeful.

Vienna, Dec. 1.—A majority of the Vienna newspapers view the Balkan situation more hopefully, chiefly on account of the report that Russia has given assurances to Austria that she does not intend to support all of Serbia's ambitions. Most of the journals think the climax of the crisis is past, but there is no sign that Serbia has abandoned her attitude on the question of an Adriatic port.

The Neue Presse asserts that during the recent negotiations Serbia demanded from Turkey the cession of the whole Albanian coast from Montenegro.

TO DEDICATE HERZ MONUMENT

Services are to Take Place Next Sunday at Hebrew Rest, Rabbi I. Warsaw Officiating.

Next Sunday will occur the dedication of the monument of the late Alfred J. Herz, which is to be placed during the week at the grave in Hebrew Rest, at the South First Street cemetery.

Alfred J. Herz was a Waco boy, and organized the firm of Herz Bros., the two boys, Alfred and Sidney, taking up the business when their father passed away. Two energetic young men, starting in business, found every encouragement from those who knew them here, and as years passed they became well known in business circles. Enterprising in every way, they were active actors in commercial affairs. Alfred Herz died December 9, 1911. Under an old Jewish custom, the time for setting and dedicating the tomb is twelve months, and the date has been selected for next Sunday as coming within that time.

Rabbi I. Warsaw of the Temple will officiate at the services. The members of the family residing here will be present, and there also will be the sisters of Sidney Herz, Mrs. Samuel Bruck of Tyler and Mrs. Joe Hirsch of Corpus Christi. All friends of the family are invited to attend the services.

SUGAR FROM MAPLE TREES.

From Earlier Times The Indians Produced The Syrup.

From the time the earliest explorers discovered Indians making sugar from the maple tree until the present day, the production of maple sugar has been an important industry in the United States. The interesting information contained in Farmers' Bulletin 516, soon to be issued by Secretary Wilson. The industry is purely American, Canada being the only country outside of the United States that produces the product. The bulletin says:

"Maple sugar and maple syrup are considered delicacies and are not produced in such quantities as formerly. The aggregate of all pure maple products and the many imitations may be the same, for it is said that were all the maple trees cut down, and thus the supply of maple sugar cut off, no drop in the quantity of syrup or sugar would be noted. Within the last six or seven years there has been a renewed tendency toward the production of a better grade of maple products."

"Maple syrup or maple sugar prepared by the best methods is a light-colored, pleasant-tasting product. Contrary to the popular notion, it is not a sticky substance, but a result of uncleanly methods and possibly sour sap in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, and were manufacturers to take greater care in their methods their results would show improvement. This better grade may be compared to the maple who have been accustomed to the dark, stronger grades."

In relation to the present growth of the sugar maple the bulletin states: "Within its wide range the sugar maple appears as a predominant tree in the New England states, New York, Southern Canada, Northern and Western Pennsylvania, and in parts of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. In the Southern Appalachians it occurs in scattered bodies where climate conditions are similar to those of the North. In the extreme northern part of New York state and the adjacent district of Quebec the forest growth is often almost pure maple, and even considerably further south, where beech and hemlock are associated with the sugar maple, it is the dominant species. In Northern Pennsylvania, at an altitude of over 1,000 feet, the mixture is much the same as it is in New York. In Ohio Indiana and Illinois a similar condition is found, but the hilly country disappears the maple retreats to the richer and damper soils, leaving great areas to the oaks and chestnuts."

Mediation Law Department.

New York, Dec. 1.—The National Civic Federation has organized a national department on industrial mediation laws, with Marcus Marks as chairman. Passenger Train Derailed.

Albany, N.Y., Dec. 1.—When New York Central train No. 45, westbound from New York, traveling at an estimated speed of between 50 and 60 miles an hour, was derailed at Hoffman's seven miles west of Schenectady today, not one of the 200 passengers was injured. SERVIANS ENTER DURAZZO

Their Presence Is Almost Welcomed. No Shots Were Fired on Either Side.

London, Dec. 2.—A dispatch from Durazzo to the Daily Telegraph says: "The Servians entered Durazzo without firing a shot. They were actually welcomed by the citizens. With almost religious solemnity the worn, ragged Servian troops marched out of the mountains into the town."

"An Austrian steamer with wireless left the harbor as the Servians arrived, cutting off telegraphic communication which had existed only through her wireless service."

"The vanguard of Servian horsemen accompanied by citizens who had gone forth to meet them were welcomed to the city in behalf of the Muslims by Mohammedan priests, while the Christians were represented by the Metropolitan."

The soldiers who entered the war as fine strapping fellows, are now ragged, unkempt and exhausted.

"The Servian officer announced that the Servians would bring peace and good order and having reached Durazzo their grand enterprise was ended. The crowd exclaimed: 'Long live Servia and its king.'"

"Almost the first act of the Servian commander was the lowering of the Albanian flag. Night fell before the small occupying squadron of cavalry was reinforced by three battalions."

"The orthodox bishop went out with lanterns to meet the commander. The citizens were apparently highly pleased and greeted each fresh regiment as it marched through the night with enthusiasm."

"It is evident from the appearance of the troops that the campaign in the mountains has worn out the Servian army. Its officers declare that Albanian autonomy is simply an Austrian device."

The survivors were in a critical condition from exposure and shock.

A Fruit Cake

To be of the finest quality must necessarily be produced from the best of materials.

The fruit cake ingredients which we handle are entirely in a class by themselves, and the business we are doing in this line is enormous. Fine "French Glace" Cherries, Pineapples and Transparent Citron is not found everywhere, whereas the ordinary "tough" article is to be had everywhere. Both first and second prizes on Fruit Cakes as exhibited at the Cotton Palace were awarded to Waco ladies, who baked their cakes from ingredients purchased from us.

Fruit Cakes, like the balance of our offerings, are A-1 in quality and our customers rely on us when seeking the best.

During the month of December you are going to need a great variety of fine groceries, and we want to have the pleasure of serving you. Perhaps it would not be amiss to suggest that you confine your business with us during December because you are assured of receiving both service and quality, coupled with a complete stock, which eliminates the necessity of "trading around" and scattering your bills.

The large store force which we now employ (18 in all), augmented by our complete phone system (8 phones, all No. 6) and our delivery, consisting of 7 wagons, makes for rapid service.

In a word, your business, whether tiny or large, is appreciated by us. Then why not for December—

MERIDIAN ROAD PARTY.

Will Be in Waco Next Monday for a Conference.

John C. Nicholson and a party of engineers interested in the survey of the Meridian Road, which is to be an international highway from Canada to the Gulf, will reach Waco December 5.

The Waco Automobile Club is arranging to entertain this party and discuss the route of the road through Texas. A committee composed of M. Falkner, W. W. Seely and Roy E. Lane has been appointed to arrange all the details. It is proposed to give the visitors an entertainment of some kind, and to talk over the matter. Just which route the road will take from Waco has not been determined. San Antonio wants to get it, and there is a sentiment in favor of going direct to Houston.

METHOD OF PROCEDURE LEFT WITH PRESIDENT-ELECT TO DECIDE.

UNDERWOOD IN STATEMENT IS AGAINST THE RINGERS

Speaking for Himself He Proposes Going Through Laws and Reforming Every Schedule.

Washington, Dec. 1.—To President-elect Wilson will be left the task of determining whether the tariff alone is to be considered at the special session of congress next spring or whether general legislation shall be taken up and whether the tariff is to be revised as a whole or by schedule.

Representative Oscar W. Underwood, chairman of the ways and means committee of the house and democratic tariff leader, has said he would make no decision on either of these points until he had talked with President-elect Wilson. He will meet Mr. Wilson probably in New York late in December or early in January and the plans for the extra session then will be elaborated and given to the public.

"I can express now only my own opinion as a member of the committee," said Mr. Underwood. "I favor going through the entire tariff law and revising and reforming every schedule. Whether that revision will be in a single bill or series of bills, each to cover a single schedule, will not be determined by the committee until we know Mr. Wilson's desires."

The house desires to work in cord harmony with the president and as to what the present and the extra session should do. The ways and means committee will have a general meeting late next week and the democratic members then will begin plans for the opening of hearings in January, at which all persons will be allowed to present their tariff views.

House to Reserve Power.

The desire of senate democrats to participate in the original making of the tariff bills drew a definite statement from Mr. Underwood that the senate will be fully consulted in all matters of preparation but that the house would reserve to itself its full authority to make the original tariff bills.

"I think the members of the ways and means committee would be willing to confer freely with the members of the finance committee of the senate as well as with individual members of the senate with reference to a tariff bill," he said. "We should endeavor if it is possible to do so to send a bill to the senate which is going to meet with the approval of the democrats of the senate when it gets over there."

But I think that is as far as you can go. You cannot have a general committee of the two houses to write a tariff bill because the ways and means committee is responsible to a different constituency than the finance committee of the senate. We have to bring in a bill which will be satisfactory to the membership of the house and the senate finance committee has to bring in one that is satisfactory to the members of the senate.

"If we had a general committee and the senators sent something to the house that did not meet with the approval of the house, it would be making us stand for something that our constituents would not stand for. The result is we will have to prepare our bill with the sentiment of the house in view and we cannot afford to surrender that to anybody outside of the house."

There probably will be differences between the two houses in the end on questions arising in the tariff bill, but when these differences go to conference they can be settled by compromise. The senate may put amendments on to the house bill which the house would take as a matter of compromise in the end, but which it would not take at all as an original suggestion from the ways and means committee."

Pittsburg Leads in Fielding

Pennant Winning Giants Rank Seventh—Daubert Leads First Basemen List—Saier Close Second.

New York, Dec. 1.—Pittsburg, which finished second in the National League race last season, led the National League in fielding by nine points, while the pennant winning Giants were seventh.

This is shown by the official fielding averages, made public today, the Pirates leading with a percentage of 97.2, as against 94.3 for Philadelphia, second, while the New Yorks are next to last with 95.6, two points ahead of the Boston, who fielded as they finished in the league race last.

Daubert led the first basemen with Saier close second, while Eagan of Cincinnati was far ahead of the other regular second sackers. Lobert of Philadelphia, fielded 97.6 in sixty-four games, second among regular third basemen, being in Byrne of Pittsburgh with 94.8 in 130 games. Wagner, the Pirate veteran, was easily the premier shortstop.

Pittsburg players were also to the fore among the outfielders. Donlin, Leach (later with Chicago) and Cary being among the first seven. Marsans of Cincinnati, is between Leach and Cary, with Wheat, Murray of New York, and Paekert of Philadelphia, immediately following. Pittsburg's three backstops—Simon, Gibson and Kelly—are three men in a row among the catchers, only topped by Needham of Chicago. Several pitchers fielded superbly. Robinson of Pittsburgh, going thirty-three games without an error, and Brown of Boston, and Willis of St. Louis, each thirty-one games.

CLEAN SPORTS LEADS MATHER

FACULTY MEMBER FROM THE UNIVERSITY TALKS TO THE BOYS' CONFERENCE.

Others Make Talks at the Closing Service and All Sing "Blest Be the Tie" in Parting.

Joining hands and forming an unbroken circle which stretched around the interior of the Austin Avenue Methodist church, the ninety-three delegates and secretaries of the annual session of the Texas Older Boys' conference sang together "Blest Be the Tie" just prior to final adjournment last night.

This ceremony followed four seven-minute addresses by four speakers, one of whom was Dr. W. T. Mather, representative of the faculty of the University of Texas, in the Texas Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association, who has just come from the meeting at Fort Worth. He took occasion to say last night that the "yellow streak" which the "yellow streak" he stated was "the yellow streak" is an ordinary, contemptible liar.

The meeting followed the usual services conducted by the Rev. Hubert D. Knickerbocker, and the meeting was presided over by L. A. Coulter, state Y. M. C. A. secretary.

Committee reports were first called for, after telegrams from the Colorado, New York, Ohio and New Hampshire state conferences, sending greetings to the Texas boys, were read.

The committee on the number of delegates in attendance upon the convention was ninety, with three members of the state committee in attendance.

The report of the committee on resolutions, offering thanks to A. R. Roberts for the trip to the top of the twenty-two story Amicable Life building, to the citizens of Waco, the churches and the ladies who assisted at the banquet and their hospitality, to the speakers and the officers of the conference for their help. Resolutions were also adopted urging that each member of the conference endeavor to do more efficient work in the organization which he represents.

L. W. Dunn, first speaker.

L. W. Dunn, of the International committee, boys' department, was the first speaker of the conference here. He declared that the conference here would have a wholesome effect upon the city of Waco; that it was good for the boys to begin serious thinking and good for the parents of the boys to begin serious thinking about them.

He declared that the work among boys in the United States and Canada was of vital importance because of the great number of boys who are now developing, there being 8,000,000 over 14 years of age in the two countries.

It is important, he says, because statistics show that delinquent boys first fasten upon the boy when he is in his teens, in nine cases out of ten. It is important because only 5 per cent of these boys become members of the church, while 76 per cent of them drop out of the Sunday schools before they get to the Bible classes.

The work is doubly important, he said, because formation as far as the great number of boys who are now developing, there being 8,000,000 over 14 years of age in the two countries.

Charles W. Kingsbury, boys' secretary of the San Antonio Y. M. C. A., was the next speaker introduced. He pointed out the fact that the boy has a great chance at home to begin "doing things" by doing the little things in everyday life that are helpful to those to whom he owes much. He urged that they purify the sports of the state.

In the high school there were many avenues open for telling work by boys, he said, one of which is through the training chapel exercises. He advised that the boys go to the principals of their schools and ask that the chapel exercises be made worth something, have some good lawyers, a doctor deliver a short lecture, that would be helpful to the students in after life, once or twice a week.

In the churches, he declared, as well as in the Y. M. C. A., the boys could do wonders, both inside and outside. As an outside activity he told of a crowd of Y. M. C. A. boys that once took the children from an asylum for the insane, the boys raising an outing once a week, the boys raising the money and conducting the excursions. Great joy was dispensed in this way.

He said that in San Antonio the boys had absolute charge of the Sunday meetings, they arranged for the speakers, for the special music and for anything else that may come along, and the secretary frequently would know nothing of the meetings if he did not see the advertising, which also is handled by the boys.

Dr. W. T. Mather on Athletics.

Dr. W. T. Mather, of the University of Texas, on his way home from the meeting of the Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association at Fort Worth, who stopped over here for the closing session of the conference, was next introduced.

He declared that he had the combined fortune and misfortune to represent the university on the state board. He watches the sports on the field at the university and he also sees in his office the "yellow streak" which he said is an ordinary, contemptible liar.

them as I do you would realize this fact. The fellow who is willing to play any kind of game to win, isn't wanted on any of our teams. Personally, I wouldn't use him for fertilizer. The man who will play any kind of a game to win, and I speak with conservatism, has a yellow streak, and the man who will play such men or ringers, when he does play them, is just a plain, ordinary contemptible liar."

He declared that the man who would endeavor to drown the signals of another team, is playing dirty ball. The T. L. A. A., at its recent meeting, has formed, he said, an organization which will reach back through the high school. But if any of the high school fellows before him is afflicted with the "yellow streak," he stated emphatically that it wouldn't be worth while for him to come to Austin, for he wasn't wanted at the University of Texas.

B. W. Godfrey.

B. W. Godfrey, of Houston, told the boys that they who have heard the talks at this conference, will have an unusual opportunity to come out on the right side when they return to their homes. In the old days of chivalry nobility carried with it certain obligations. So, he said, did the distinction of being a delegate to the first convention of the kind for boys, carry with it obligations which should not be forgotten when the excitement of the convention addresses had worn off and the boys had returned to their homes. They need not depend upon their own strength, but should depend upon Christ, and after heartily clasping his hand, should enter the battle with a stout heart.

L. W. Hunter.

L. W. Hunter spoke to the boys for a little more than one minute. He warned them that, after having had the great opportunity offered them by this convention, they would probably meet face to face with some of the greatest temptations they had ever experienced within three days after they returned to their homes. The manner in which these are met and overcome or allowed to conquer, he predicted, would probably have a distinct bearing upon the future lives of the boys.

That was the suggestion of Mr. Coulter, the boys joined hands in a circle which stretched entirely around the room and sang "Blest Be the Tie." Following the benediction, the meeting was adjourned until dawn.

That the conference surpassed in its every phase the work and spirit expected from it by Mr. Coulter and the other leaders, were statements made last night after the meeting.

MISSIONARY FROM MEXICO.

Rev. Jackson B. Cox fills the Morrow Street Pulpit.

Filling the pulpit at both the morning and evening services, the Rev. Jackson B. Cox, for eighteen years a missionary to Mexico, delivered interesting sermons to the congregation of the Morrow Street Methodist church yesterday, dealing, for the most part, with his work in the foreign field.

At 11 o'clock his subject was "Mexico." He gave his hearers knowledge of the people, their customs, the taking of the country by the Spaniards, the struggle for independence, their revolution upon revolution. He spoke of their magnificent cathedrals, erected at such sacrifice of time and money, and the description of ex-President Diaz and of President Madero was interesting.

For eighteen years Rev. Mr. Cox has been a missionary among the Mexican people, and he is thus well acquainted with their language, habits and manners. He knows their weak and strong points of character.

He is soon to return, now that his year's furlough is nearly ended, to spend the remainder of his active life preaching to the inhabitants of the struggling republic just to the south of our great state.

At the high service the speaker told several interesting experiences. One especially thrilling was when he narrowly escaped from a drunken Mexican filled with a murderous intent.

He closed his sermon by relating the life story of a Mexican boy who came to him for help which he gladly gave, assisting him through school and later on, when the boy had reached manhood, the missionary was privileged to be in his home, a happy, well-furnished house of the well-educated and prosperous man.

Notwithstanding the rain and mud, the service was well attended, and a blessing of the Rev. Mr. Cox proved a blessing to the Morrow Street church.

An interesting feature of the night service was a song in Spanish by the "Mexican" choir, which failed to sell the other. The choir failed to sell the other. The choir failed to sell the other.

Revival at Second Presbyterian.

Beginning with the subject, "How to Start a Revival," Rev. E. E. Ingram, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, launched a series of soul-awakening sermons in his church yesterday morning. The series was accompanied by an excellent music program, the latter being in charge of W. H. Hightower.

Large crowds were in attendance, and it is believed the services will be continued until he will hear his sermons. Mr. Ingram has thrown open the doors of his church to the members of all the other congregations who care to attend and listen.

TILLMAN CASE TO BE RESUMED.

Son of Senator Seeks Possession of Daughters.

Columbia, S. C., Dec. 1.—Hearings on the habeas corpus proceedings brought by B. R. Tillman, Jr. son of United States Senator B. R. Tillman, who is now in custody of his former wife, Mrs. Lucy Dugas, will be resumed before the state supreme court tomorrow.

The case was continued last week to permit counsel for Tillman to secure affidavits in rebuttal to affidavits introduced at the time by Mrs. Dugas. Affidavits presented by Mrs. Dugas contained statements alleging that Mr. Tillman was intoxicated during the present month.

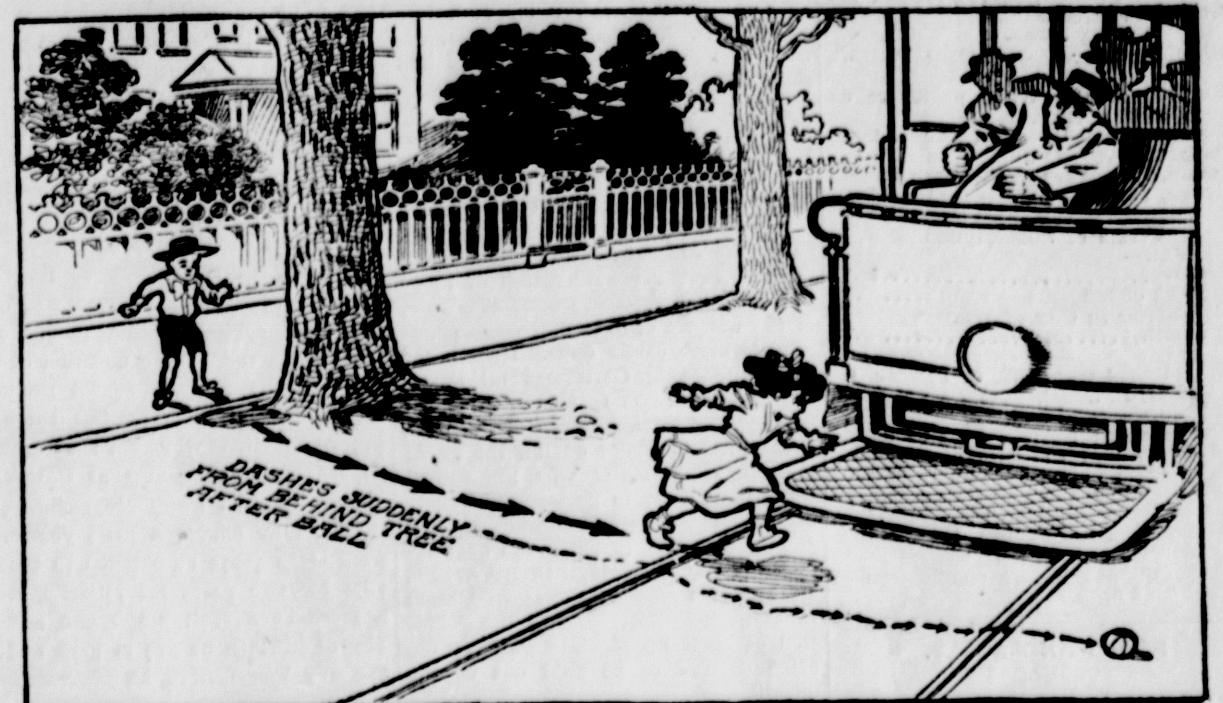

Ransdell Funeral Services.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Brief funeral services for the late M. Ransdell, sergeant-at-arms of the senate, took place at the family residence here late today, conducted by Rev. U. G. B. Pierce, chaplain of the senate. Tonight the body will be taken to Indianapolis, where services will be held tomorrow.

Road Builders to Meet.

Cincinnati, Dec. 1.—At the annual convention of the American Road Builders' Association Tuesday the problem of improving public highways will be discussed by experts of this country and Europe. M. P. Sullivan, road commissioner of France, will speak at the opening session. An exhibition, the largest ever shown, will show developments in road building.

HOW IT MIGHT HAPPEN. IV

The motorman knows that this is the saddest accident in the whole list. A little child comes out suddenly from behind a tree or wagon and runs quickly across the track—after a ball perhaps. The child is busy—intent upon its play. The motorman is straining every muscle in his body to stop the car! But it simply CANNOT be done in time. Not with the best car ever built or the best motorman who ever handled a brake. The wheels go over and—. Suppose it was YOUR little boy or girl.

NEW GOODS ARE ON DISPLAY

Merchants Say the Women Are Mistaken About Old Stock Being Shown.

The merchants of Waco think the action of the members of the Federation of Women's Clubs Saturday in declining to pass a resolution in favor of early shopping, have hit upon a mistaken idea as a reason.

The action of the club as reported yesterday was commented on quite freely. It is shown that the early shopping crusade was never intended to apply to toys because it is generally understood that toys are purchased all along from three to four weeks before Christmas, up until Christmas day, but those things which are to be given as useful presents are ready for the buyers. For instance, cut glass is a staple article of merchandise, and the cut glass bowl of last year is the same as the cut glass bowl of today. Designs in the cutting come out all during the year; there is no special design for this Christmas, any more than for some time during the summer.

The real diamond of last year in a Tiffany setting, is none the less valuable than the real diamond that is received in stock today, in the same character of setting, so it would be no profit to the Waco jeweler to hide away the goods received this week, and bring out those he had last year—even if he had last year's stock on hand.

In furs, cloaks, wraps, and other things of wear, the season's styles are being shown, and the merchants contend that the ladies know that those now being shown are the autumn showing, and not that of 1911, so in this regard they are mistaken in saying old stock is being shown.

And in brass goods—these things do not hang over from one Christmas to the other. The goods which failed to sell the previous Christmas were cleaned up at the January Clearance sales, and are all gone—it don't pay to carry such things twelve months in storage.

The gloves which will be bought for Christmas presents, are the gloves of this season which are on display—the same is true of hose, and ribbons, and the embroidery sales during the past few weeks have been so many that stocks are being replenished every day.

The truth of the matter is, say the merchants, that the women who come to shop will get the pick of all this year's purchases. They are on the counters of all the stores.

Early shopping is a sentiment. It is not urged only in Waco, but in every part of the country, because as Christmas day approaches, and business becomes heavier every hour because of belated purchases, the employees of the trades people, human nature stand just so much of a strain, and if it becomes too much at Christmas time, the pleasure of the holiday is taken from those who are engaged in commercial work.

13,975,000 BALES IN SIGHT.

Cotton Crop Estimate Will Reach These Figures.

New Orleans, Dec. 1.—This season's cotton crop will total 13,975,000 bales, according to estimates compiled by the New Orleans Times-Democrat from a canvass of reports from correspondents in every cotton-growing state.

This estimate does not include linters and repacks.

The

MORNING NEWS' BIG $5,000 CONTEST OPENS THIS MORNING

First List of Candidates Will Be Published
Sunday, Dec. 8—Make a Nomination at Once, It Costs Absolutely Nothing.

AMBITION AND FRIENDS NECESSARY

In Each Division Will Be Given One Five Passenger, 1913 Model Touring Car, One Player Piano, One
Building Lot, Two Diamond Rings, Two Bank Accounts, Two Ladies' Solid Gold Watches.

As previously announced in Wednesday's issue, The Morning News' big contest will start this morning at 8 o'clock and judging by the number of nominations already received, this will be the liveliest campaign ever conducted in Waco or in Central Texas.

With $5,000 in valuable prizes to be awarded February 1st, it stands to reason that there will be competition for every prize in every district, and as friends and ambition are the only necessary attributes, it will not be advisable for any one who is considering entering the contest to lose any time.

The first list of candidates will be published Sunday morning, and if your name or the name of your favorite is not among them, fill out the nomination blank that appears in this issue and bring or send it to the Contest Manager at once, so that it may be included in the list at the earliest possible moment. A subscription is not necessary, but if you will include a "Starting Opportunity" coupon it will be of great assistance in launching your campaign, and as only two of them will be accepted or counted for any candidate, it will be well to get them in today. The office will be open until 5 o'clock this evening to accommodate those who are unable to come in during business hours.

A Prize For An Effort.
This is your opportunity to secure one of the most costly and desirable gifts absolutely free. Nothing is ever gained by standing back and allowing others to secure the prizes of life. "Procrastination is the thief of time." Here is an exceptional offer in which eighteen valuable prizes will be awarded to the popular young ladies strictly upon their ambition and energy. WE EXHIBIT THE PRIZES HERE. They can be found in this hustling country to take part in this gigantic campaign. WHY NOT BE ONE OF THEM?

Nominations.
Any person has the privilege of nominating one or more candidates. Nominations should be mailed to the contest office at once, as the names of candidates will be published in a few days. Candidates can be nominated after this date, but it is a great advantage for each to have her name in the first list published, so that her friends may know where to work for some one else before knowing who is entering the contest.

How Ballots Are Secured.
In all cases where ballots are secured, subscriptions must be paid or prepaid. The full amount of money must be sent by mail, paid to the local agents or brought to The Morning News office.

Any young lady living in the defined territory is eligible to enter the contest.

How Territory Is Divided.
The territory covered by The Waco Morning News contest will be divided into two divisions and each division shall consist of two districts. The divisions shall be known as Contest Division No. 1 and Contest Division No. 2.

Division No. 1 shall consist of all of the territory within the corporate limits of the city of Waco, including districts Nos. 1 and 2.

Division No. 2 shall consist of all of the territory outside of the corporate limits of the city of Waco, comprising districts Nos. 3 and 4.

District No. 1 shall consist of all of the city of Waco from the river north from the center line of Austin street.

District No. 2 shall consist of all of the city of Waco south of the center line of Austin street, including all of East Waco.

District No. 3 shall consist of all of the territory outside of the corporate limits of Waco, north of the Cotton Belt railroad, including all towns on this line and city rural routes Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4.

District No. 4 shall consist of all of the territory south of the Cotton Belt railroad, not including any towns on this line, but shall include city rural routes Nos. 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9.

It is a matter of importance to get into the race early and getting started. In a contest of this character the race is not always to the swift or to the strong, but rather to the ones who get in early, stay late and see their friends and get the votes.

There is not a prize that will be offered that will not be well worth the effort put forth in winning it, and The Waco Morning News wants to see the prizes go to those who earn them. Get in early and stay in late. That is the way to win.

A Sound Business Proposition.
The Morning News pledges absolute good faith and fairness to all people who will engage themselves in this campaign. This is not a "something for nothing" scheme, nor is it a scheme at all. Neither is it a charitable undertaking on the part of The Morning News. It is a business proposition pure and simple. The object is to advertise this paper and to increase its circulation and to win a welcome in every household in the field that it covers.

The Theatres

Louisiana Lou Tonight.

"Louisiana Lou," which will be played by Harry Askin's special company for the first time here tonight, at 8:15, in the Auditorium, is founded on reason, inasmuch as there is a play beneath the fabric of fun and music that has made it the success of the season in Chicago. A sane story is told by "Louisiana Lou," and every laugh and every song grows legitimately out of this story.

The character of the title is a foundation. She was picked up in the street one night by Jacob Lidofski, a kindly Hebrew, in New Orleans, where he and his immigrant pal, Rodrick Konkarny, were seeking to make a living. Lidofski, broke and virtually homeless, saved for the room he occupied in the Konkarny's poor but happy little home, took the child to the care of Mrs. Konkarny, who gave to the founding the same tender care as to her own son, Jack. Luck changed for both Lidofski and Konkarny from the night the child was found; and at the opening of the play we find Louisiana-Lou—the name given her by Lidofski because of the initials "L. L." in a pocket about her baby neck—betrothed to Jack, but in love with Jack's pal, Nixon Holme, and Jack facing an "arranged" marriage with Lou in love with Della Fair, the pretty sister of the second Mrs. Konkarny, the first having died before the opening of the story.

It is Mardi-gras in New Orleans when Lou returns from her Paris schooling, and the play consists of the resources employed by all four lovers to upset the plans of Lidofski and Konkarny, to unite the two families in marriage. One of the touching and beautiful scenes of the play is where Lidofski, in fear tells the founding, now a beautiful girl of seventeen years, that she is not his own child.

Hippodrome Theatre Opens Tuesday.
Managers Ingraham and Brian announce the opening of the Hippodrome theatre Tuesday night at 7 o'clock, presenting to the amusement lovers of Waco a bill of five high-class vaudeville acts and moving pictures.

The announcement that they intend to make the Hippodrome vaudeville an amusement for everybody, is well received, and they have arranged the prices accordingly, making 500 seats at 10 cents, 300 seats at 20 cents and 200 seats at 30 cents.

This makes the price so cheap that all will be able to attend. They intend giving two performances each night, the first commencing at 7:30 and the second at 9 o'clock. The entire house will be reserved for the first show. There will be special ladies' and children's matinees on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday at children 10 cents, adults 20 cents.

The box office will open this morning at 9:30 o'clock and persons are asked to seek any further information they might desire.

The following acts are booked for Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee and night:

The shows to be seen at the Hippodrome will be identical as those offered at the Pyie theatre in Beaumont for 25, 35 and 50 cents.

One of the feature acts for the opening will be The Ellises, marvelous exponents of mental telepathy. After this act is once seen, it is expected to contribute materially to the drawing powers of the show. This act is always a big hit. In many instances it remains at one theatre as long as two or three weeks. The Ellises stayed for twenty consecutive weeks at the White City in Chicago in 1910. Their work appeals to the masses. The skeptical are amazed and become keenly interested in their work, as well as the superstitious. Exclamations of surprise and astonishment are common when this act is witnessed. The Ellises stand pre-eminent among mind readers and have on file columns of flattering press notices. They have given private demonstrations before men of science under rigid test conditions and have never failed to convince the observing that their work is genuine. The enunciation of the lady is perfect; her voice is clear and pleasing to the ear. This adds to the enjoyment, for there are mind reading stunts in which she describes old relics, souvenirs, emblems, and all articles submitted by an audience accurately and minutely. She reads the most difficult names and addresses from cards, letters, receipts and the like, without having any more intimate knowledge of them than the fact that they are handed to her manager. The work of The Ellises is rapid, clean cut and convincing and the prevailing opinion is that Mrs. Ellis, who gets the impressions blindfolded on the stage is endowed by nature with a remarkable talent or a supernatural power.

Malvern Acrobats.
The Ellises will be only one of several big acts to open the Hippodrome under its new policy. The Malvern troupe of acrobats will astonish local theatre-goers by their agility and grace. There is a laddie in the troupe who is just as accomplished as his elders. A lady also participates in the stunts.

The Aeroplane Girl.
The Aeroplane Girl is still another novelty announced for the opening show. This is a vaudeville adaptation of the latest craze. While aviators fly through the air, Miss Lula Atkins is doing a similar stunt in the auditoriums of theatres. It is an act so different from anything that has been seen in Waco before that it can be predicted as certain to score one of the hits of the bill. It is the highest type of vaudeville entertainment. The auditorium is darkened; a fluttering sound is heard as though a giant bird were flapping its wings, preparing for flight. Directly an aircraft speeds through the auditorium, circling here and there and performing all sorts of stunts. Miss Atkins drives it, and at the same time sings pretty songs and attracts by her personality.

Texas Tommy Dancers.
Hathaway and Mack, Texas Tommy dancers, will appear on the opening bill. This act was recently seen at the Royal Theatre in San Antonio, Texas, where it was voted the sensation of the year. Aria Hathaway is a beautiful woman and gets splendid assistance from her handsome partner.

May Evans, a Whistler.
May Evans will entertain with whistling and imitations. She will offer a popular melody which has bits from the latest ragtime successes and in the way of classical material offers "When the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold." Miss Evans is the leading exponent of this style of entertainment. She has played all of the leading theatres in the country. The Boston Post says of her: "May Evans is a young woman who whistles. She does that so well, however, and so demurely, that the big audience was quite willing she should do it several times. The result was that Miss Evans proved herself a clever imitator of all kinds of birds, to the great satisfaction of all." The Worcester, Mass., Telegram says: "May Evans produces a novelty for a woman. Miss Evans offers a unique specialty by whistling several popular songs and gives some imitations that are beyond the powers of many well known imitators. Her description of a train moving out of a station is one of the best things of the kind ever seen in Worcester. The puffing of the steam engine, the several sounds of the engine whistle and the chugging of the drivers were unusually realistic." The Dramatic Mirror says: "May Evans, a whistler and imitator, exhibited unusual talent and ability. She goes through her work in a quiet, unassuming manner, which goes a great way towards catching the sympathy of the audience. Her act was a decided hit."

Get Rich Quick Wallingford.
Geo. M. Cohan, as a writer of comedy without the adornments, lingerie and perversion of classic compositions to fit a popular tune, which have made him a recognized factor in America, is a new development in the career of that versatile young man. He has taken the sketches of Chester and made a comedy of highway finance named "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," which appears at the Auditorium Thursday night.

The piece was the dominating attraction at the Geo. M. Cohan Theatre in New York for one year, and a run of almost equal length has been recorded in Chicago.

"Get Rich Quick Wallingford" is a comedy with a distinctly up-lift motif, and, while at no time preachy, in the sense of a sermon, it unquestionably points a moral.

Although the plot is George Randolph Chester's, the moulding of the character of Wallingford, the promoter of wild-cat schemes who regularizes the little country town and unobtrusively spreads the virus of speculation among its inhabitants, is characteristically Cohanesque. Wallingford is as clever a rascal as ever waylaid a traveler on the highway, but the elements of humor that enter into his composition make him a hero. Cohan has given him the benefit of all his experience as a laugh-maker and the result is a humorous rascal—or rather two rascals—tricked out in the best vestments of that genius which laughingly mingles characterization with the unique language of the pave.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:—

I take pleasure in saying that I have purchased a 100 foot corner on Colcord and 32nd. Streets in HIGHLAND PLACE, upon which I expect to begin building a home within the next 90 days.

HIGHLAND PLACE in my mind is one of the prettiest restricted additions in the country, being ideally situated for home purposes. I know of no other lots with conveniences that are now being installed on HIGHLAND PLACE that could be had for anything like the price of HIGHLAND PLACE LOTS. As a speculation or as a home they appeal to me as being a splendid buy and I am interesting my friends with me to build a high class neighborhood in this addition.

USE CARE GROWING ASPARAGUS

Advice of the Department of Agriculture To Those Who Cultivate.

Brooders and growers of asparagus are advised by the U. S. department of agriculture through Bulletin 267, Bureau of Plant Industry, to take up pedigree breeding and to use careful methods of production in order to keep rust from the plant.

On the subject the Bulletin says: "Although the breeding work carried on with asparagus will eventually lead to the control of rust in commercial plantings, several years must elapse before this result will become effective. Meanwhile it is necessary to take all measures practicable to prevent the destruction of existing fields of asparagus by the rust. To this end the main factor is to keep the rust away from the fields in summer just as long as possible.

"Wild asparagus growing around the borders of the fields, along fences and ditches is one of the worst enemies of the grower. These wild plants act as infection centers and their influence can be easily traced later in the season when the cutting beds have grown up. Wild plants wherever found should be dug up and burned. New beds should be planted at only rare intervals of time and then if possible where they will be to windward of a cutting bed. Keep the seedlings out of the cutting bed. At least let none stay in at the time the bed is allowed to grow up after the cutting season. Allow no poor shoots to grow up in the cutting field. Keep down every shoot of asparagus until the middle of June and see the neighboring farmers do the same. The fall the tops should be removed carefully from 1-year-old beds that are not to be cut the next year. This will in a large measure reduce the liability of infection from this source."

COTTON GOODS STRONG

ACTIVE MARKET OF PAST WEEK
SHOWS GENERAL ADVANCE.

Buying Continues Steady and Jobbers Are Able to Secure Deliveries They Require.

New York, Dec. 1.—The cotton goods markets were strong and active during the week and advances were announced in many lines of merchandise. Fine carded yarn bleached sheetings are higher by half a cent a yard and wide sheetings are either at value or offered at advances on the high grades. Wide print cloths are a full 1/4c a yard up and colored cottons are firmer with advances named in some lines.

Buying has been steady and many jobbers who have been holding off are now unable to secure the nearby deliveries they will require. Bidding for spot goods, which are very scarce, has caused the uplift in prices, although cotton has been high, the element of demand for goods has been very powerful at the moment when supplies are restricted. There is still great difficulty in getting a full product from operatives. The mills could run in full, as there are orders enough, but many of them have been unable for some months to obtain better than an 85 per cent output.

Jobbers in the west report steady sales and distribution is unquestionably broadening in the eastern industrial centers. Fall River sold 210,000 pieces of print cloths last week, of which but 70,000 were for spot shipment. Prices on cotton goods are as follows:

Print cloths, 28-inch, 64x64's, 4 1-16c; 64x68's, 3 15-16c; 28 1/2-inch, 64x64's, 5 1/4c; brown sheet, southern standards, 8 cents; denims, 9-ounce, 14 c; tickings, 8-ounce, 13 1/4c; standard staple prints, 5 1/2c; standard staple gingham, 6 1/2c; dress gingham, 9 1/2c.

COTTON DEALS SLOW

WEEK PROMISES TO BE ONE OF WAITING FOR REPORTS.

Yield Estimate Will Be Basis of Prices—Interest Taken in December Spots.

New Orleans, Nov. 1.—The cotton market this week promises to be a waiting affair. To some extent the trade will be interested in the amount of cotton ginned to the end of November but the main thing to be considered will be the estimate of the total yield by the department of agriculture, because, to a large extent, the figures on the yield will be based on them. Estimates of the amount of cotton ginned, coming from private crop reporting bureaus will be used in making up private estimates of the crop. Probably several rather important private estimates will be made this week. The census report on ginning will not be issued until next Monday.

The into-eight movement, the spot demand, the extent of spot offerings and the export movement, together with mill takings, will all come in for attention and discussion this week, although any developments that may come to light in any of these features of the situation may not have their natural influence on the market because of the nearness of the government's guess in the crop.

More or less interest may be taken in the December spot situation, as it is generally thought that December commitments are large and bulls contend that those who have sold are not any too well covered.

Steel trade heavy

CONGESTION AT MILLS INCREASE AND THE OUTPUT IS CHECKED.

Pig Iron Production Shows Gains Despite Strike Trouble—Big Railroad Contracts Made.

New York, Dec. 1.—The volume of business in the steel trade last week was again heavy and the net result of the new developments was further to increase congestion at the mills and to check output of products.

The returns for the month of November are not complete but it had it been for the strike of the railroad yard men at the plants of the Homestead Duquesne and Edgar Thompson Works of the Carnegie Steel Company, the United States Steel Corporation would have again broken production records of pig iron. As it was in the first three weeks, pig iron production was greater than during the corresponding period in October and the steel output was within 35,000 tons of the maximum production last month.

Several important railroad contracts for equipment were placed last week, including 6000 cars for the Illinois Central and 4000 for the Missouri Pacific. Other western roads also placed contracts making the total ordered in the month of November 34,000 cars. Railroad contracts for the month exceed 500,000 tons, of which 132,000 tons were released last week, while the Union Pacific and the Chicago and Northwestern are on the point of closing upward of 100,000 tons.

The pressure for semi-finished steels is indicated by the purchase of a round tonnage of open hearth billets by a steel company in the Pittsburgh district at $25.08 delivered. In fabricated structural steel the principal contracts placed totaled more than 18,000 tons.

Other interesting developments of the week was the purchase of 20,000 tons of basic and malleable Bessemer by the Canadian Car and Foundry Company from Buffalo furnaces. The same interests also bought a round tonnage of finished steel products from the Dominion Iron and Steel Company.

FINANCES OF THE WEEK

STOCK DEALS ON STRICT SCALE.
MONEY SUPPLY IS LIMITED.

Easing of Cash Rate Not Expected Until After New Year's—Strain Somewhat Relaxes.

New York, Dec. 1.—Dealings in stock last week were on a restricted scale, with the mid-week Thanksgiving holiday aggravating the disinclination to extend commitments. Limited supplies in the money market constituted the main factor of restraint on speculation. Early in the week the renewal rate quoted at the stock exchange was the highest since the close of 1907, when the markets were emerging from the effects of the panic. The foreign exchange rate also fell to the limit and the call loan rate rose to a level for which the same period must be sought for a parallel. The meagre engagements of gold for import, in spite of these conditions, indicate the continuance of worldwide strain in money markets.

The immediate strain in New York is expected to relax with the issuance of the expected call from the controller for reports of conditions of national banks, the payment of December settlements and a reflux of cash sent to Canada last week for banks there in preparation for the yearly balance sheets made up on November 30.

Actual easing on money rates obviously is not looked for until the turn of the year. Stiffness of discount rates abroad and premiums on time loans for the shorter periods in New York are the index of this expectation. The turn in the tide of the currency movement in the interior will bring the periodical passing of the strain of the crop movement requirements.

Elements of restraint, it is agreed, made for safety at this time by keeping within bounds a spirit of enterprise which might otherwise run to excess, with the danger of early reaction. Similar views are expressed regarding the effect of the prospective tariff revision from sources where alarm was professed formerly.

Labor troubles in the United States Steel corporation mills, the decline in copper exports, lower estimates of the cotton yield and freight car shortages were unfavorable features in the prevailing prospect.

Proof.

"Oh, mother," sobber the young wife according to the P. R. finder. "I've discovered that John does not trust me."

"Why, my child, what has he done?"

"Well, you know, I cooked my first dinner for him today and he invited a friend to dine with him."

The sob broke out afresh. "And, oh, mother, the man he invited was a doctor."

"I think I saw your little boy chewing tobacco as I came in the gate," said the neighbor, according to the Houston Post.

"Yes; that was Johnny."

"Mercy! Do you permit him to chew?"

"Well, you see, that was an almost new plug of tobacco his father left when he died, and it seemed a sin to waste it."

"Bought and Paid For" has made such a success in Chicago that it may run there for the rest of the season.

ELKS' MEMORIAL TRIBUTE TO DEAD

PHOTOGRAPHS OF THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED AWAY ARE SHOWN.

AN ADDRESS BY W. W. HAIR

Talks of the Benevolence of the Order, Judge Sam R. Scott's Letter, Talk by Mr. Hirschberg.

Memorial services were held throughout the United States Sunday by the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Waco Lodge No. 166 commemorated the occasion with impressive ceremonies at the Hippodrome theatre. Tribute was paid to several hundred dead by the local lodge. A program of music, memorial services and a memorial and local memorial address was given.

Wherever there is an Elks lodge some of the members gathered to listen to the mystic roll call to those who will never answer here. It was an occasion not so much to eulogize those who have passed away, but to refresh memories of the day when they, too, gathered to commemorate the ones who preceded them, to answer the final call and to bring back the better deeds of their lives.

As the photographs of the thirty-two members of the honored dead were flashed on the canvas by means of a moving picture machine and the secretary called the names, brother Elks were reminded of every absent member of the local lodge.

Mr. Hair's Address. "The day has come, no more," reminded W. W. Hair of Temple, who delivered the memorial address following the opening memorial service conducted by Exalted Ruler Will Carroll, the opening ode and the invocation by Chaplain A. R. McCollum, with music intervening.

"The same power that fashions the rainbow, figures the hills and hollows and rules the destiny of the entire universe, is moving us slowly to our appointed end, and yet, for a little while the mist will begin to gather, the swallows will flock about the hill and the final message will come, and we will join our honored dead in the great beyond," continued Mr. Hair.

"Nature was the law in the beginning of the world. Following the Christian era, when 'love thy neighbor as thou love thyself' prevailed, great strides were made, but in these modern times the wind no longer makes us quail, night no longer brings us dread, and it was necessary to organize. One of the youngest, ablest and most esteemed lodges in the United States today is the Benevolent Order of Elks. It is strictly an American order. It teaches patriotism—you will never find an Elks' hall without Old Glory, for candor and color are not optional—teaches us to visit the sick, help the widow, help one another, and, above all, it teaches honesty. What better could be said of a man than that he is honest? Also, it teaches justice, not that justice that is ruled by the hand of might, but that hidden justice which is the conscience of man, that is ruled by a power higher than our own.

"This is an age of fraternity. The Elks are here today in brotherhood to pay tribute to our honored dead. Let us not say because one of the honored dead did not attain to fortune, write a book, acquire public fame and transform some established precedent to get his name and picture hung high in the hall of fame that he was not useful and the world is no better because he lived, for when he passed away thousands of hearts were sad. He was loved by men and women, regardless of who he was, and what more is in life?

"Great cities have crumbled, great men have been forgotten, many world-honored accomplishments have been surpassed and forgotten, all of the glory of art has not retained its high place, for candor and color are not permanent. Then, we ask, are there no monuments worth building? They tell us that the sermon on the mount, the declaration of independence written by Thomas Jefferson, and other historical events will never die. For us, we can live a life and make a fraternal bond time-honored, casting it in cemented friendship that will be forever blind.

"Regardless of where in the favored land an Elks' hall is today, he is paying tribute to those who have been called. The day is one to remind us that we, too, must leave this earth and answer the mystic roll call."

Judge Scott's Tribute. Judge Sam R. Scott was unexpectedly called from the city yesterday and was unable to deliver the local memorial address. Sol Hirschberg, who delivered the first memorial address in Waco ten years ago, ably took his place. Before making any remarks, Mr. Hirschberg read the following letter.

"Dear Brothers—Circumstances over which I had no control caused me to leave the city this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, therefore it will be impossible for me to take part in the exercises, but I will not let the occasion go by without at least saying a word for our departed brothers.

"The term, 'a good man,' is often applied to many men who do not belong to the Elks, and they no doubt deserve the term 'good men.' But when we find a man whom his neighbors say of him, 'he is a good man,' and we find in searching his career that he was a man who never spoke evil of others, never charged a fellow-being with wrong doing or of evil thoughts unless he has proof positive, and while he recognized that man possessed faults, yet, those of his brothers he wrote lightly on the sands of time, in order that even the gentle breeze from whatsoever source it might come, would erase the record and let the world forget it.

"Such was the character of our deceased brothers. They were, indeed, good men.

"Upon the roll of absent brothers, there appears one who deserves special mention. He deserves all of the kind and good things which may be or could be said about him. I refer to Brother John Fall. God bless his memory! He was kind, generous, loving, charitable, brave and a true Christian man. No man ever lived who possessed a bigger heart, a grander soul, or a more charitable and loving disposition; all who knew him loved him, men, women and children, the rich, the poor, the native born, the foreign born as well. Oh, he was one of God's noblemen.

"I sincerely believe that the recording angel will search the records of life in vain for an entry against Brother Fall.

"SAM R. SCOTT."

Mr. Hirschberg's Tribute. "None were dead ten years ago when I delivered the first memorial address. Thirty-two are dead now. Dr. H. Behrens was the first to pass away. He was a grand, a noble man, loved and respected by all. Although it seems strange, he was the first to be summed, and John Fall was first during the year of 1912. Two men who stood for the best of Elksdom passed thus," continued Mr. Hirschberg.

"The photographs thrown on the canvas brought those gone before closer to us, and no doubt many in the audience can recall some happy incident during the lifetime of the honored dead and at least can remember some pleasant incident. We all remember the brotherly love, communion, good fellowship, love, charity and protection that bound us in the great order of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks."

The downpour of rain before the hour of the services probably kept several away. The stage of the theatre was decorated attractively for the occasion. A row of palms across the front, flanked by American flags for a background, presented a fine scene. The stand in the center with the Elks' horns and a vase of flowers, climaxed the effect.

Alessandro's symphony orchestra furnished the music. Special numbers were given by Mrs. F. H. Wheeler and H. J. Havekost, Miss Eldora Stanford and Howell James.

WACO CITY MISSION.

Interested Crowds Attend Both Afternoon and Evening Services.

The Christian services Sunday at Fifth and Austin streets over the American Express company and under the auspices of the Waco City Missionary association, were well attended. Superintendent L. S. Boyles led. Good talks were made by Rev. P. C. McConnel, J. J. Terrell, Tom Hamilton, Oscar Myers and others. A solo by Miss B. J. Byars was a feature.

It was the first meeting at the new hall and the promising beginning inspired the workers. Scores pledged their support to Superintendent Boyles, agreeing to answer a call to give assistance at any time. The sermon of Mr. Boyles in the evening was very inspiring and resulted in four conversions. Two men came forward in the afternoon for prayer.

It was an interesting crowd that attended both the afternoon and evening services. Persons in all walks of life were present. The man with the every-day garments was made to feel welcome and invited to tell his friends to come.

Rev. P. H. Faulk will preach at the mission hall tonight at 7:30 o'clock. The meetings continue every Sunday this week. All church denominations are supporting Superintendent Boyles, and the pastors and laymen of different churches have signified their willingness to help continue the meetings several weeks.

They Have Been Put on Sale at All Drug Stores.

Twenty-five thousand Red Cross stamps have been distributed in Waco by the Waco division of the Texas anti-Tuberculosis association, of which Mrs. F. J. Lennox is president. They are now on sale at all of the drug stores, many of the cigar stores, and arrangements will be made at once to sell the stamps at the hotels. Two stamps, mailed from Waco bear as many Red Cross stamps as postage stamps.

The picture-show exhibitors are donating their assistance by showing a slide with each show, and some of them already have shown special films illustrating the work of Red Cross physicians and nurses.

Breaks Window With Rock.

A lusty lot of bottles of wine and whiskey in the show window of J. A. Early on Franklin street was too great a temptation to Bud Tinsley, farmer north of the city. At 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning he caved in one side of the window with a rock, but before he could satisfy his thirst Policeman Landrum arrested him.

"We were the only two persons in the block," said Policeman Landrum, "discussing the incident. 'I don't know why Bud did not see me for I saw him all of the time, even saw him pick up the rock, but didn't realize what he was going to do until I heard the window crash.'"

PHILOSOPHY OF SERVICE, TEXT

REV. F. N. CALVIN DELIVERED SERMON TO LARGE AUDIENCE.

18 PERSONS JOIN THE CHURCH

Return of Pastor to Central Christian Church is Met With Success. Last Night's Address.

Rev. F. N. Calvin is getting a grip on the situation at the Central Christian church, where he served seven years and from which he has been absent fourteen years.

He has received eighteen additions into that church during the two months he has been here. His audiences are increasing each Sunday.

He preached last evening on "The Philosophy of Delightful Service." He took for his text First Corinthians, XIII:3. He said in part:

"Dr. Drummond has declared love the greatest thing in the world. There is a profound philosophy in this declaration. All voluntary action is the result of motive. But motive is not necessarily a virtue. It may be good, or it may be bad. Motive impels, but it impels to evil as well as to good. It also impels to good as well as to evil. The word is often misused, restricting it to the bad sense.

"We say, 'He had a motive for doing that.' Of course he had a motive if the action were a voluntary one. But it was not necessarily an evil motive. Motive is our master. Motive is the mainspring of action.

"I want us, this evening, to study the motive—first, that prompts to action, second, that always prompts to action, third, that always to good, fourth, that never fails; fifth, that makes all doing a pleasure.

"Our study may justly be called, 'the philosophy of delightful service.' Our text suggests what this motive is. It says, 'Love never faileth.' How shall we define love? It is one of those beautiful words of our language that has been reduced to a simple element. It is undefinable and yet it is understood by all. What is a definition? It is putting a boundary around. Love includes so much and excludes so much that to define it is impossible. Love is not a word, it is a deed. Love is not a thing, it is a person. Love is not a feeling, it is a power. Love is not a word, it is a deed. Love is not a thing, it is a person. Love is not a feeling, it is a power.

"What Love Does.

"Love sees what no physical eye sees, and hears what no ear hears. Love transmutes poison into food. Love speaks a universal language. Love gives superhuman strength to the tired mother by the bedside of her sick child. Love gives the soldier, in the midst of danger, and amid shot and shell administers the soothing lotion or holds the sup of cold water to the parched lips of the dying soldier. Love breaks the bonds of custom and social fastidiousness and with outstretched arms welcomes the prodigal home again. Love defies difficulties. Love makes all service a pleasure.

"What We Do When in Love.

"We will bear our tasks with convenience; do irksome tasks—yes, find pleasure in doing what we otherwise would not think of doing, all because we love the one for whom we are doing. Men endure hunger, cold, and the ocean, travel the mountains, go to the ends of the earth, sacrifice home, live in ice or snow or swelter in the torrid zone—yes, they find pleasure in doing all this if it but be pleasing to some. Love knows no limitations. It is as infinite as God. It is more enduring than granite. It will abide the wreck of worlds. When the marble shall have leveled, when the mountains shall have become dust and when the sea is no more love will live on. Love abides forever. Love never fails.

"Now, we understand why Jesus affirmed so positively, 'If you love me, you will keep my commandments.' 'Again, He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me.'—John XIV:15-21.

All of this is applicable to church life. The church is the representative of Christ. Christ is the representative of God. If we love God we will honor and serve Him. If we honor and serve God we will love Him. His church, one and all, are His. How may I know whether I love God or not? Apply the above illustrations and see if you can tell whether you love some dear one on earth. Study the motives governing your actions. First, what motive brought you into the church? second, what motive keeps you in the church? third, what motive prompts you to attend the services? fourth, what motive prompts you to help support the church, or take part in its work?

"Is it because you love? Because you love God? Love Christ? Love the neighbor? Love the service? If so, nothing can separate you from them. Key to Falling Away.

"We have here the secret of so much backsliding or indifference on the part of many church members. They come into the church from some motive, not love of Christ. Possibly they admired the thoughts of the minister or maybe they were moved by his eloquence. Possibly they had some dream of selfish gratification—all of which have passed away. Paul says, 'Whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away. So with all these other motives—they shall lose their power.

"If you are in the church because of love, you will attend the services of God's house, of course you will. You help to support the work, certainly. Nothing but an uncontrollable influence can keep you from it.

"Imagine a young man, who has a sweetheart, needing to be invited and waited on by committees and begged to get him to go where she is, or where she is to be honored, or to get him to do some favor for her. Rather, it would take an active and strong committee to keep him away.

"Love is not under the control of the will. If I do not love God, I am not to be blamed.

"Love is a fine art, and may be cultivated. Paul said, 'what I once hated now I love.' Given, first, a desire to love, second, a lovable object—and one will love.

"Christianity presents a lovable object, the chiefest among ten thousand, and the one altogether lovely. When, if you do not love, wherein does the fault lie?"

BOYS ARE TOLD OF HYPOCRISY

SEVERAL HUNDRED GATHERED AT THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH HEAR ADDRESS.

MAKE YOUR POSITION KNOWN

Advice Given to Young Men—Good Needs Be Exploited, Declares L. W. Dunn.

The fellow who pretends to be better than he is, the fellow who pretends to be worse than he is, and the fellow who does not pretend to be as good as he really is—these three forms of hypocrisy were discussed by L. W. Dunn at a meeting for boys held in the First Presbyterian church at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and attended by several hundred persons.

In the ordinary acceptance of the term "hypocrite," Mr. Dunn declared that it meant the fellow who posed as being better than he really is. The term itself, has become so repulsive to all. The boy who prays at church on Sunday, and then preys on his neighbor on Monday is the boy to be classed under this first definition of the word, he said.

He cited the fact that although Christ was always at work for humanity and bore love and kindness in his heart for all, yet the Bible shows that he was a man of great untold passions, and that he never displayed them more forcefully than in his condemnation of the hypocrite.

The second kind of hypocrite, the fellow who professes to be worse than he is, who blows how much he knows of "life," tells smutty stories and pretends to be a veritable desperado, he said, can be found in almost any high school. He is the sort of fellow who takes pride in being considered "pretty tough."

Mr. Dunn said that he remembered one boy in his own high school days, one of the best-hearted fellows, who ever trod the streets, who pretended to be far worse than he really was. He would tell the smutty story, brag of his "experiences," most of them fictitious, and took delight in having the other fellows listen to his yarns. In every way he endeavored to have his companions consider him "tough."

The third hypocrite, he declared, is the "drifter," the fellow who lets things slide and who does not let it be known how he is away down in his heart. He thinks right, he has the right sort of feeling and the right sort of desires and he fights to live the right sort of life, but he does not make his position plain to his companions, he does not definitely let it be known that he is standing on one side of the line, and not astride of it.

Drifting Dangerous Practice. The drifting, "let-it-slide" tendency is one of the greatest dangers of high school life, one of the greatest dangers which besets the boy, almost unawares to him, said the speaker, and the all important thing for him to do is to make it apparent, just how good he is, to let the other fellows know where he stands—and then to stand there.

In the school it is easy, said Mr. Dunn, for each boy to take a foothold, for each small thing as the manner in which a boy has hair trimmed, or the necessity for socks and tie to match. The fellow who allows himself to drift along, following one and then another, is in danger. He will soon find that he has trained himself to be a "follower," not a leader. He will find the way of a "follower" easier if it is broad and he will take the path which leads to evil. The sort whose backbone is made of cooked macaroni. The time comes in the life of every boy when he must reach a definite decision and when he does, to make it believe, he must let his comrades know just what it is and where he stands.

Many times, he said, the boy shirks this responsibility for fear the other fellows will think he believes in something he is, or for fear that being one phase of a hypocrite—the kind which pretends to be better than he really is.

The fellow who declares himself, places himself in a position for service. The man who goes out to football practice does not think he is a better player than the others who are out. He merely places himself in a position to be made use of by the team. The cases, he said, were similar.

Often the boy will say, "If I am personally clean why should I say anything about it? Why not let the other fellows alone and continue along the right path myself?"

Stand Will Aid Others. The reason the men should come out is not only because of the moral courage he will find engendered in himself by the movement and the attendant lessening of temptation, but because of the moral effect it will have upon his comrades. One man which will influence the entire school or church.

He declared that it did not seem possible that the delegates to the Older Boys' conference could have failed to secure some new ideas and some new strength through the attendance upon the meetings in Waco. These results would prove barren, he declared, if they returned to their home cities and failed to come out in their true colors, to bear fruit.

He urged that the boys reach their
